Tank, artillery battles mark war's 10th day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt claimed its tanks consolidated new positions in the Sinai Desert today after beating back an Israeli counteroffensive. Israel said the Egyptians again tried to push forward in the desert's northern reaches but were stopped short.

The Egyptians said they advanced farther into the Israeli-occupied Sinai peninsula in a tank battle Sunday that cost the Israelis 150 tanks and 29 warplanes.

But the Israelis said they relinquished no ground in the seven hours of desert fighting and claimed the attacking Egyptians lost more than 200 tanks and 15 planes.

"The pattern of today's fighting has become localized clashes in various sectors," the Egyptian statement said.

On the Syrian front, Damascus reported heavy tank, infantry and artillery battles raged as the fourth Arab-Israeli war ground into its 10th day.

Syrian shelling was slowing the Israeli advance toward Damascus and the Israeli tanks were reported about 21 miles from the ancient Syrian capital. Correspondents with the Israeli forces reported that long-range Syrian guns opened up whenever the armored columns tried to advance.

The Israeli military command also reported another naval exploit. It said its naval patrol boats sank 14 "armed fishing type" boats in harbor of Ras Gharib, on the Gulf of Suez during the night. Israel said the harbor, 20 miles across the gulf from Israeli forces on the Sinai peninsula, was an Egyptian commando base.

Otherwise, the Israeli command said, it was a quiet night on both the Syrian and Egyptian fronts.

The Egyptian military command said the fighting Sunday along the 102-mile Sinai front "raged with utmost violence and savagry." Egypt said its forces made territorial gains all along the line.

But in Tel Aviv, the Israeli command claimed Egyptian armored units failed to penetrate the Israeli defense line which it said was still about 2½ miles inland from the Suez Canal. Associated Press correspondent Paul Kohn reported from the front that he saw no evidence that the Israelis gave up ground.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said in a televised speech Sunday night that the "serious, decisive battle" with Egypt was yet to come.

"This is not like previous wars. It is a war of many days and much blood," he said. "The important question is not a cease-fire. It is how much equipment the enemy will have left when we have finished the war. What we would like is for the Arabs to hurt so badly that they cannot think of war."

The Israeli command announced Sunday that Israel had lost 656 soldiers in the first eight days of fighting; the state radio gave an unofficial figure of 2,000 wounded. An Egyptian spokesman claimed in Cairo that Israeli casualties were much higher. Neither

'Hazards' to be listed by Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew addresses a television audience tonight and sources indicated the farewell speech may be an instruction on avoiding the problems that ruined his political career.

The approximately 15-minute speech is to be televised live at 6:30 p.m. CDT by NBC and CBS.

Agnew resigned Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a federal charge of income tax evasion.

He spent much of the weekend working on the speech, without the help of the speechwriters he used as vice president.

Sources close to the former vice president said the speech would be "largely his own work."

"There won't be any whining and complaining and I don't expect him to be terribly defensive about it," said one associate. "But I think he will state his case firmly."

After leaving the U.S. courthouse in Baltimore Wednesday where he was given a $10,000 fine and three years' probation on the tax charge, Agnew promised he would make the speech.

He denied a series of criminal allegations the Justice Department listed against him in a unique 40-page document.

The government has agreed not to prosecute on the additional charges, but indications are that Agnew will elaborate on his denial.

Hearing begins for Armstrong

Armstrong, 27, pleaded guilty two weeks ago to bombing the Army Mathematics Research Center at the University of Wisconsin Aug. 24, 1970, as an antiwar act. A UW physics researcher died in the explosion. He was not working on a military project.

The hearing was described by New York attorney William Kunstler as "unique and historic" because of the defenses' opportunity to present a case for the illegality of the war in Southeast Asia in an American courtroom.

"In order to show you the motivation of Karl Armstrong we have to show you the history of the times out of which his act grew," Kunstler told Judge William Sachtjen.

"We have to deal with the war in Southeast Asia and the history of the war as it affected him."

Kunstler said the former soldiers would be followed to the witness stand by antiwar activists, scholars, newsmen, scientists and one former U.S. senator, Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

Kunstler likened the hearing to the ones that Clarence Darrow won in the Leopold and Loeb trial in Chicago, in which Darrow brought fourth the motivation of two young men who kidnapped and killed a youth from a wealthy Chicago family.

While Armstrong accepts the legal responsibility for his act, Kunstler said, he hoped that the moral responsibility would fall elsewhere–on the men who conducted the war in Vietnam and the American people.

The first witness was Charles Piper, 26, of Madison, who said he served in the Judge Advocate's Office of the 1st Marine Division in Vietnam.

Piper testified that Marines who were accused of killing Vietnamese civilians were usually acquitted or received minimal sentences upon conviction.

Armstrong said he "acted out of the highest motivations" in the Sterling Hall bombing and was merely trying to focus attention on the immorality of the Vietnam war.

"For me it took a tremendous amount of courage I did not think I had," he said. "Overnight I was turned into an outlaw by the government and labeled as a criminal."

"When I heard that Fassnacht was killed it was really a crushing moment," he said in an interview with the Wisconsin State Journal published Sunday. "I think I was more shocked than anyone else."

Asked if he felt he was "taking the rap" for the entire antiwar movement, Armstrong replied: "I don't know how to answer that question. I don't see myself as in any sort of martyr role."

The State Journal interviewed Armstrong during visiting time Saturday at the Dane County Jail after Circuit Court Judge W.L. Jackman denied a request that county officials be ordered to allow an interview.

Armstrong, who was arrested in Toronto, Canada in February, 1972, said his whereabouts was given to authorities by a person he had provided with money while he was a fugitive.

"It was a person I had given a fairly large sum of money to," Armstrong said. "He was into the drug scene and I thought he was trying to get out."

LBJ phone tapped, Douglas says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said today that former President Lyndon B. Johnson thought his White House phone was tapped.

Douglas also said he believes the Supreme Court's ultraconfidential conference, at which the justices discuss pending cases, had been bugged.

Douglas' assertions came in a dissent to what would normally have been a routine action denying bail to a criminal defendant.

"We who live in the District of Columbia know that electronic surveillance is commonplace," wrote Douglas. "I am indeed morally certain that the conference room of this court has been 'bugged'; and President Johnson during his term in the White House asserted to me that even his phone was tapped."

Douglas offered no substantiation for either claim.

The application for bailing pending appeal to the Supreme Court was filed by Margaret Anne Heutsche, who was found in contempt for failure to answer questions before a federal grand jury in Chicago that was probing break-ins into draft boards in Evanston, Ill.

The application went to Justice William H. Rehnquist who denied it. Douglas dissented.

The defendant claimed that the subpoena and the questions asked her before the grand jury were the product of illegal electronics surveillance and that the government had not properly affirmed or denied that claim as required by federal law.

The government claimed it had not eavesdropped on any of the defendant's telephone conversation but refused to say whether or not her lawyer had been overheard

"We are told that in this case the applicant's lawyers did discuss her case with persons other than herself over the telephone," Douglas wrote. "Is Big Brother to have a ringside seat where he can listen to all the confidences of lawyers who defend an accused?" Douglas asked.

Lower courts had refused Miss Heutsche's attempts to require the government to check its records to determine whether or not her lawyers phones had been taped.

"The victims of illegal governmental surveillance are thus apparently faced with the insurmountable task of proving such surveillance before the government will be asked to respond to allegations of its existence or pticipate in an evidentiary hearing to decide the matter," Douglas said.

Widespread blaze

Flames and smoke billow from a densely packed section of homes and businesses Sunday in Chelsea, Mass. The general alarm fire was fed by high winds. (AP Wirephoto)

1,100 homeless after fire

Five firemen injured fighting the blaze were hospitalized. No deaths were reported.

About 500 National Guardmen roped off the desolate, charred expanse of the oldest section of the city, which was destroyed Sunday when a raging fire devoured dozens of crumbling buildings.

The homeless, most of them Spanish-speaking, blacks and elderly Jews, sought shelter with relatives and in a makeshift dormitory thrown set up in an armory.

"I have lost everything!" said Henry Wogciechowski, 49. "It's a crying shame. All the people who live in the stricken area are poor people. Just look at all these people standing around crying! They have no place to go from here."

Residents of the estimated 60 dwelling places destroyed rushed through the streets ahead of the blaze, carrying plastic bags and suitcases stuffed with belongings.

At the height of the blaze, which officials said apparently started in an abandoned rag storage building, 3,000 to 4,000 persons were evacuated from their homes.

Sparks leaped from building to building as gusts up to 50 miles an hour swept across Boston Harbor.

"This is a conflagration of epic proportions," said Fire Chief Herbert C. Fothergill. "A conflagration such as this one creates its own winds of hurricane force."

The fire cut a path a half mile wide through the decaying industrial section of the community of 32,000, two miles north of downtown Boston. Many of the industries were small businesses that reclaimed scrap metal, rags and tires. Much of the area had been scheduled for demolition through urban renewal.

Fothergill described the city as a "a huge tenement Our buildings are almost all of the wooden two-and three-decker type."

The national Board of Fire Underwriters in February said the city had "the highest potential for conflagration of any city in the United States." The board cited the city's role as storage area for 138 million gallons of oil, gasoline and other flammable fluids, all above ground.

About half of the 20-block area was leveled. The rest was a jumble of stark building skeletons and smoldering utility poles.

The fire, which broke out about 4 p.m., was contained at a railroad right of way about five hours later. But it continued to burn today. Policemen with dogs roamed the area to guard against looters.

A huge plume of black smoke, visible 40 miles away, attacted thousands of Sunday afternoon sightseers, who slowed fire apparatus rushing to the scene from as far as 100 miles away.

Firemen doused buildings in the path of the wind-pushed blaze, but gave up on them as soon as they ignited

"One minute you'd see a shop on fire. Then the next thing you knew, four or five tenements were gone," said one witness. "It was incredible."

Gov. Francis W. Sargent declared the city a disaster area, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said he would ask the federal government to do the same.

Mayor Philip Spelman said he hoped most of the evacuees could be returned to their homes by Tuesday. He said he is still working on finding housing for the homeless.

Matthew Sobelewski, 60, whose home was destroyed, said he and his wife Winifred were lucky to get out when they did.

"Mine was one of the first homes to go," he said. "Winifred and I were just sitting down to Sunday dinner when the sparks got the outside of the house going."

"Someone — I don't know who it was — banged on my front door and said our house was on fire. My wife, our dog and I got out, but I had to leave behind my parrot, three hens, my aquarium and all the money I had."

Securities case to get high review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a lower court decision in a securities industry case that could sharply affect the future of suits on consumer and environmental protection.

The dispute turns on questions in federal court management of class action suits, legal actions in which someone brings litigation for himself, and also for all others who are similarly affected.

The case was brought to the Supreme Court by Morton Eisen for himself and all others who purchased stock on the New York Stock Exchange in less than 100-share lots during 1962-1966.

Eisen wanted to recover the extra commission the so-called "odd-lot purchaser" has to pay for trading in less than 100 shares. He launched a $120 million class action suit against odd-lot brokers and the stock exchange.

Earlier this year, a three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court at New York declared the case unmanageable as a class action, and then went on set up what critics have called all but insurmountable roadblocks to certain other class actions.

The full circuit court voted five to three against rehearing the case with the majority declaring that the Supreme Court should resolve the issue as quickly as possible.

Two key provisions of the circuit panel ruling, written by Judge Harold R. Medina, required notification, at Eisen's expense, of the 2.5 million oddlot purchasers in the class, and called the so-called fluid recovery doctrine illegal.

Under the doctrine, if those who actually paid the extra commission cannot be located, the money damages could be passd on to others in a similar position such as future odd-lot purchasers.

The trial judge in the case had originally okayed a method of notification that would have involved about 7,000 persons.

Circuit Court James L. Oakes, in dissenting from the refusal to rehear the case, echoed the fears of class action proponents.

"The panel opinion seems on its face to give a green light to monopolies and conglomerates who deal in quantity items selling at small prices to proceed to violate antitrust laws, unhampered by any realistic threat of private consumer civil proceedings ..." Oakes said

Thai leader leaves as peace move

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The former military premier of Thailand, his son and the deputy premier, left Thailand today in a move to restore peace to the violence-torn capital, the government radio said.

The three Army leaders — former Premier Thanom Kittikachorn, Deputy Premier Praphas Charusathien and Col. Narong Kittikachorn — were the focus of street clashes between foes of the country's government and the regime's troops and police for the past two days.

Praphas was considered the most powerful man in the ruling group. Narong, Thanom's son, is the deputy chief of national security.

Thousands of flag-waving demonstrators had demanded the execution of the three leaders.

Thailand's new civilian premier appealed again today for an end to bloodshed as student bands attacked police stations, looted and burned government buildings.

Student representatives, who reportedly met with new Premier Sanya Thammasak, relayed his appeal for order to demonstrators in the square around Democracy Monument, the center of the week-long antigovernment demonstrations which erupted into violence Sunday in this capital city.

Sanya did not immediately confirm the departure of the three military leaders and the demonstrators were skeptical.

Radio Thailand, the government radio, said Sanya reported that the new government had reached an understanding with the students, but it did not elaborate.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej named Sanya, rector of Thammasat University, to replace Thanom Sunday. But throngs of demonstrator confronted the army's troops and tanks today, and sporadic shooting sent a steady stream of casualties to already crowded hospitals.

Concert series opens tonight

OSHKOSH — The Vienna Johann Strauss Orchestra, which will open the Broadway 41 (Town and Gown) Red Series with a concert at 8:23 p.m. today at the Oshkosh Civic Auditorium, carries on a tradition that extends back to 1826 when the orchestra was founded by Johann Strauss I, "The Father of the Waltz."

Strauss' son, Johann Strauss II, best known as "The Waltz King," led the orchestra for more than 40 years while composing some of the most universally popular music ever written. It was the younger Strauss who first brought the orchestra to the United States in 1872.

His brother, Eduard, toured America with the orchestra in 1892 and again in the 1901-02 season.

The Vienna Johann Strauss Orchestra returned for its fourth visit under the baton of the last of the Strauss dynasty, Eduard Strauss II, grandson of Eduard Strauss I, during the 1966-67 season.

After his death, Willi Boskovsky assumed the directorship of the orchestra. The orchestra's regular guest conductor, Walter Goldschmidt, who also serves as music director of the Graz Opera, will conduct the current tour.

Since 1968 the orchestra has toured extensively in Europe and made two trips to Japan. It is planning visits to Australia and South Africa. It is seen and heard regularly on Austrian television and radio and has recorded in Europe for EMI, Amadeo and Columbia.

The 48-member orchestra will feature soprano Birgit Sarate-Pitsch and tenor Wolfgang Siesz, both stars of the Vienna Volksoper and the Graz Opera, as vocalists on its 50-city tour.

It will be heard in solos and duets from "The Gypsy Baron," "Die Fledermaus," "Wiener Blut" and "A Night in Venice."

The orchestra will be heard in many of the favorite Strauss waltzes, overtures, marches and polkas, such as "The Blue Danube," "Tales from the Vienna Woods" and the overtures to "Die Fledermaus" and "The Gypsy Baron."

Concert soloist

Operatic soprano Birgit Sarate-Pitsch will be a soloist with the Vienna Johann Strauss Orchestra appearing at the Oshkosh Civic Auditorium tonight.

Recreation of a temple

9-10 — Channel 38 — American Egyptologist Ray Winfield Smith uncovers "The Mystery of Nefertiti" on PBS Special Of The Week. This is a fascinating look at the recreation, by means of modern computers, of the Temple of Akhenaten, the renegade Pharoah who worshiped the sun god, and his beautiful wife, Nefertiti. Thirty-five thousand of the more than 3000-year-old blocks were found and Smith and his coworkers set about to photograph and code each pictorial reproduction for processing by computer. The result is the reconstruction of one of the world's greatest buildings and the key to the mysterious Nefertiti, whose intellect and beauty placed her in a position of power unusual in her day. The hour ends with "Tutankhamen," a short film revealing many of the 200,000 beautiful objects found in the tomb of the "Boy-king" (he died at 18), when it was opened in 1922.

7-7:30 — Channels 2-7 — Charles Schultz' animated Peanuts characters come to life again in the special You're Not Elected, Charlie Brown. Charlie Brown is in the limelight, running for school president and with temperamental Lucy as his campaign manager, problems develop.

7-8 — Channels 9-11 — The Rookies neglect a call to chase a speeder and they get in trouble. The call is from a lonely widow (Joan Blondell), who has "cried wolf" before. This time she really needs help and the boys set out to find the thieves who robbed her and to help keep her out of an old age home.

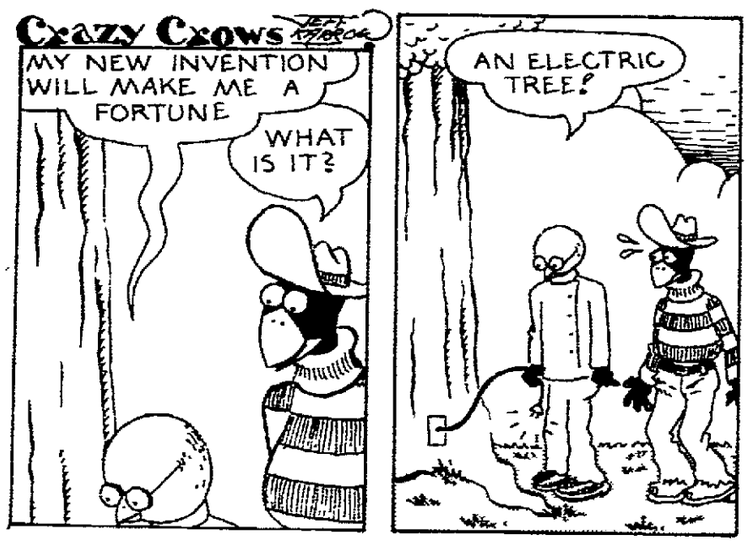
7:30-8 — Channels 2-7 — Dr. Seuss On The Loose is a trio of short fables. Leading off is 'The Sneetches," who inhabit beaches where star-bellied sneetches look down on plain-bellied sneetches, a fact which lets a con man get rich. "The Zax" is about two stubborn critters, one a north-going zax and one a south-going zax, neither one giving way to the other.

8-8:30 — Channels 2-7 — Eddie Albert is on Here's Lucy. He and Lucille Ball prove a winning song-and-dance team. The major plot gimmick: Lucy tries to convince him to be in the Girl Friday Follies, and he thinks she's a "ding-a ling" who bothers stars and may be dangerous.

8-conclusion — Channels 9-11 — The Cleveland Browns are on home ground to take on the Miami Dolphins on NFL Monday Night Football with Howard Cosell, Frank Gifford and Don Meredith reporting the action.

8:30-9 — Channels 2-7 — The New Dick Van Dyke Show has Dick all by himself sobbing uncontrollably — and he's very funny. He has been to the dentist and the sobs come from the laughing gas — and an argument he has had with Jenny (Hope Lange).

9-10 — Channels 2-7 — It's round-up time for Country Music fans and artists as The Seventh Annual Country Music Association Awards are telecast from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry House. Johnny Cash heads the roster as host, with Roy Clark, Loretta Lynn, Eddy Arnold, Charley Pride, the Statler Brothers, June Carter, Glen Campbell and Anne Murray either performing or presenting or both.



Amendment to merger bill expected to be killed

Post Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The unexpected action by the Assembly Education Committee to try to restrict the power of the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents in eliminating graduate programs will be reversed this week.

The committee, giving final consideration to the bill that would complete the operation aspects of the merger between the two university systems dropped a bomb recently by amending the bill to require legislative approval before any programs could be cut.

The action brought cries of protest from university representatives and regents. UW President John Weaver called the move "irresponsible."

But the committee chairman, Rep. Herbert Grover, D-Shawano, who opposed the amendment originally, has been meeting with his committee members informally and now has the votes to recommend passage of the bill without the amendment.

The amendment, offered by Rep. James Azim, R-Muscoda, was supported by legislators whose campuses were not faring too well in the early returns on the campus mission program.

The merger bill faces a rough fight on the Assembly floor and an even rougher struggle in the Senate. Most legislators expect it to be amended greatly and then sent to a compromise committee for its final draft.

Arson suspected in Milwaukee hotel fire

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The 25-story Marc Plaza hotel was evacuated Sunday after a fire broke out on the top floor.

The floor on which the blaze took place is used only for storage, and no one was injured. But Robert McCann, the 1st battalion fire chief, said extensive damage was done to furniture, mattresses and bedding. He said the possibility of arson was being investigated.

Vaccinated child can't pass rubella to mom

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is German measles vaccine safe and effective?

I heard that the vaccination only keeps the vaccinated child from contracting the effects of German measles, but he still can be a carrier and transmit the disease to his expectant mother Would you advise a woman to be vaccinated against German measles before she decides to raise a family? —C.R.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 12 and at our school the measles vaccine was given to all children who needed it, except girls over 12 and girls who have begun to menstruate. Why? —C.G.

Yes, the rubella (German measles) vaccine is both safe and effective and it has been shown that a vaccinated child does not transmit the disease to his mother. (This was questioned at first, so careful studies were made.)

Yes, I most certainly think a woman should be vaccinated against this disease before starting to raise a family. Should be vaccinated, that is, unless she already is immune from having had the disease. If she isn't sure, a simple blood test will show whether she is immune —many adults are.

However, if she is not already immune and is eligible for vaccination, she must be absolutely certain that she is not already pregnant and that she does not become pregnant for at least three months after the vaccination.

Having German measles, or having the vaccination in the early part of pregnancy, has a savage record of causing defects in babies, or causing them to be born dead.

That explains, to some extent, the answer to today's second question. When a girl has begun to menstruate, she is potentially able to become pregnant and some do become pregnant that early, too.

Thus when the vaccine is given on a mass scale (as in a vaccination program at school) it becomes a massive task to examine all girls to make sure they are not already pregnant, or to follow up and take whatever steps are necessary to be certain they do not become pregnant for a safe time after the vaccination.

As a practical matter, not giving the vaccine to girls over 12 or who are known to have started to menstruate is a sensible way to handle the situation.

This does not mean that girls past 12 should not be vaccinated if they are not already immune —but it should be done by the family doctor who can devote the necessary time to make sure that a girl is not pregnant.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you print the ingredients that snuff has in it? Would snuff be harmful to a diabetic? If it states on the can "sweet snuff" but does not list the ingredients, would it have sugar in it? —Mrs. V.C.

Sorry I can't oblige, but ingredients of snuff seem to be much-guarded secrets of the manufacturers. I believe molasses is used as a sweetener, but the term "sweet snuff" would imply sweetening with some substance and hence probably better avoided by a diabetic.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After a very thorough physical, the diagnosis was cholelithiasis. Can you tell me what this is and what the treatment is? The doctor gave me medicines that didn't seem to work. —Mrs. E.K.

It means that gall stones have formed — and my experience has been that medication sometimes can give temporary relief but, in the end, removal of the gall bladder is the answer.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what types of trouble to look for, send for Thosteson's booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to him in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

MAYOR'S BUSINESS
October 3, 1973

I have two items to present to the Council. The first item is the appointment of Mrs. David Patterson to fill an unexpired term on the Board of Education which will expire in 1975.

The next item is a communication that I'm not sure you're aware of, but I'd just like to mention that it has to do with the meeting of the Wisconsin State Chapter of National Association of Housing and Renewal officials which will be meeting for its annual fall session in Oshkosh on October 10th and 11th at the Pioneer Inn. I'd like to give you a little information on this and for further information you can contact Jack Hetu who will be attempting to get specific details concerning the agenda. The program is planned to appeal to housing and renewal specialists. Presented will be reports on the current status of special revenue sharing legislation, current issues in community development, and trends in activity in local housing programs, how lay citizens are involved in program planning and review of the new state involvement in housing. Speakers for the program will include Lt. Governor Martin Schreiber, Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee, Secretary Charles M. Hill of the Department of Local Affairs and Development, Mr. George Simos, Executive Director of Wisconsin Housing Finance Authority, and Mr. James Hetland, Vice-President of the First National Bank in Minneapolis and a roster of others who have designed presentations and panel discussions calculated to be of interest and service to people involved in community development and its many aspects. A registration fee of $22 will be charged which includes luncheons and a dinner. If you have an interest in attending that meeting next week, I suggest that you contact Jack Hetu for further details and hopefully by tomorrow he will have specifics as to who is speaking when.

Cottage appliances need winter protection

The leaves are rustling in the cool fall breezes, and now it's time to think of closing up the summer cottage for another season. Pack all the clothes, cover the furniture and just close the door?

But what about the valuable home appliances about to sit through months of disuse or the possible ravages of freezing weather?

It is really simple to fully protect those appliances and assure their readiness for next season's summer fun In most cases a careful cleaning will control potential odors and prevent invasion by insects The appliances will be subjected to freezing weather A note to the appliance manufacturer will bring instructions on any required special care.

Water-using appliances are most subject to damage during winter months These include dishwashers, refrigerators with icemakers and clothes washers Pipes, hoses and other internal parts of these units can rupture if water freezes and expands The simple solution. shut off water coming into the cottage, then drain all water from the appliances.

Whatever the off-season weather, fuel sources and power supplies should be turned off to protect the equipment

These appliances need special attention:

Ranges — burners and pilot lights should be shut off on gas ranges

Room air conditioner — Use a standard air conditioner cover or plastic to protect the outside of the unit. Remove the grille and put a sheet of plastic or cellophane behind it to keep out cold drafts, dust and dirt

Dishwasher — visible food particles can be removed and the dishwasher cleaned by running through a full cycle.

Food waste disposer — close the stopper and fill the sink with a few inches of cold water Then start the unit and open the drain, allowing the water to circulate through the operating disposer Food waste will be removed and potential odor build-up eliminated.

Dehumidifier —if the unit has a drain pan, empty it

Dryer —clean the lint screen and put a towel or rag in the outside vent to restrict entry by winter winds and small animals

A final hint use a sheet or other fabric not plastic to cover appliances Fabric breathes allowing moisture to escape and thus prevents rust, while plastic keeps in the dampness.

Benefit Circle revival

Remember when... the sound was big band

Remember when bobby socks and saddle shoes, pleated skirts and baggy sweaters were the only dress of the day for a hep teen-ager? or when the Big Apple and the Lindy were danced by everyone? or when jitterbugging couples took over the dancing floor?

If you do, and if you really were a follower of the big bands, then a revival of the sounds of yesterday should be an appealing idea

Taking a page from the nostalgia for the past that is being seen everywhere during these days of the 70s, Benefit Circle of the King's Daughters is presenting "The Big Band Sound," a dancing party that will begin at 8 30 p m Friday, Oct 26 at the Rainbow Gardens

Setting the musical mood will be such old favorites as "String of Pearls," "Tuxedo Junction," and "The Continental," skillfully played by the Winnebago Lake Flies

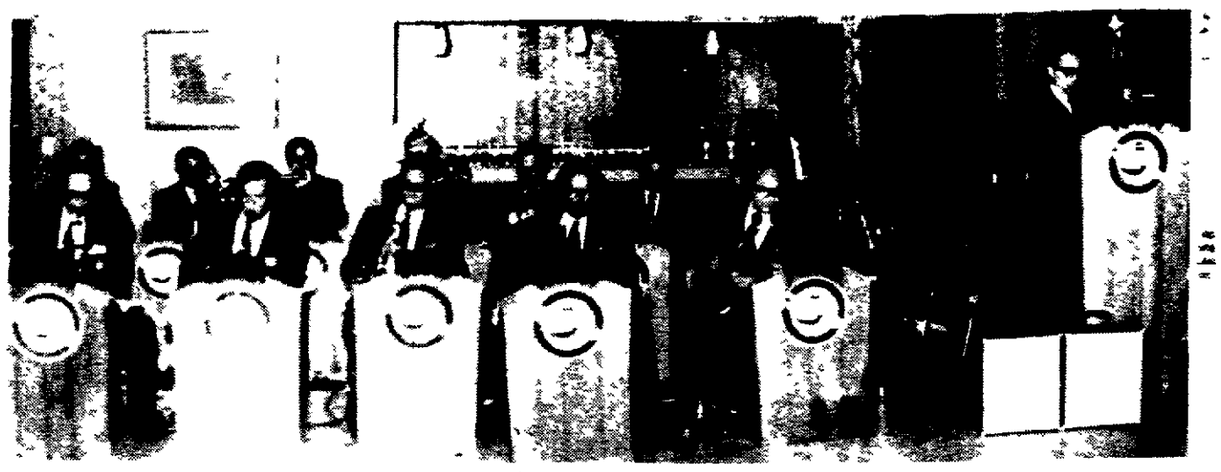
The Lake Flies are a group of Fox Valley men who joined together in 1967 to play swing from the big band era for their own enjoyment Every member of this unique organization is an executive or professional man who simply enjoys playing memory-tickling tunes While the group never accepts a professional engagement, it has occasionally taken a job where a charitable venture was involved

The Rainbow Garden seemed the logical choice to Benefit Circle members since they reasoned this was one of the dance halls in the Fox Valley where the bands played one night stands During the hey day of the Garden, the acts for the floor shows were playing a circuit and often were booked directly from the Black Hawk in Chicago or the Toys or Picks in Milwaukee. While the big name bands were usually booked into the Nitingale, the Rainbow stage was home for an evening to such persons as Bobby Darin, Conway Twitty and the Crew Cuts

Through the years, the Rainbow was a popular spot for organizations' parties Among the big productions of years past was a show presented by The King's Daughters called The Gay 90s

Thus it is that the site was chosen, the band selected and the eras of sound picked Chairmen of the event are Mrs Joseph Marston Jr and Mrs Wilmer Stach Serving with them are Mmes Donald Brown, Dexter Wolfe, John Conway and William Wilke

Funds raised will be directed to the charitable projects of the circle



Winnebago Lake Flies

Rehearsal of the Flies have been repeated three evenings a month since the organization began in 1967 It all began for this group when they formed to play the sounds of swing.

Crowded dance floors

Scenes such as the one above were similar in towns across the country as name bands took the stage for one-night stands This one, taken at a Fox Valley dance hall, should jar memories for many local people

Toe-tapping sounds

Tony Pastor, Tommy Dorsey and Lawrence Welk were familiar names and faces during the 40s and 50s when swing was the most popular sound in the U.S Each band leader had his own sound, as did these three

Serendipity chosen as sale theme

Christ Child Society

"Serendipity Sale" of new and used items for the family has been planned by the Appleton Chapter of the Christ Child Society from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday at St. Joseph's old school building on W. Lawrence St.

Headed by Mrs. Ed Luben and Mrs. Don Haynes, the sale will benefit the group's community service projects.

Members of Christ Child Society chose the sale theme to denote the nature of the venture. Their definition read: "Serendipity: A word coined by Horace Walpole who says that he had formed it upon the title of a tale "The Three Princes of Serendipity" the heroes of which "were always making discoveries, by accident and sagacity, of things they were not in quest of.

"These three young nobelmen, while traveling through the world, rarely found the treasures they were looking for, but continually ran into other treasures equally as great or even greater which they were not seeking. In looking for one thing they found something else and realized that this was one of life's wonderful tricks.

"When the princes began to dip into life with serenity everything that happened was exciting, new and thrilling. Its meaning is given as: "the art or gift of finding valuable or agreeable things not sought for."

Events cause emotional stress

Dear Ann Landers: Since you frequently remind your readers that emotional problems can create physical problems, I am sending the findings of Dr. Thomas H. Holmes, a psychiatrist at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle. He has listed 43 events that create emotional stress in order of their impact. Dr. Holmes's theory is that any change, pleasant or unpleasant, can create susceptibility to illness. He advises against making several consecutive changes in living patterns when one has a choice. Such changes, he said, should be postponed or cancelled. Here is the list and scale of impact:

Events	SCALE OF IMPACT
Death of spouse	100
Divorce	73
Marital separation	65
Jail term	63
Death of close family member	63
Personal injury or illness	53

—Your Seattle Friend

Dear Seattle Friend: My thanks for a fascinating contribution. Interesting that going to jail creates 10 stress points less than getting a divorce —and only 13 points more than getting married! I suspect there are some convicts who would disagree.

The ailing house

Insulate before shortage

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I am thinking of increasing the thickness of the insulation under the floor in the attic space. I'm not sure whether the present insulation is adequate, as last winter I noticed condensation up there, even though the space wasn't really very cold. Should I put in the really thick blanket type, which I'm sure is more expensive than a thinner layer? A friend claims that the best possible insulation will actually cost nothing because of the savings in fuel it will bring me in only a few years. Is this true? —Worcester.

A: Your friend is 1,000 per cent right. Let me also add, as a caution to all home owners thinking about insulation. Don't dawdle! Get your insulation as soon as you can. I recently read that insulation materials are getting scarce in some sections. This is due to home owners buying what they need right now, due to the real possibility of heating fuel shortages this winter.

Q: Due to an electrical storm, we had no light during the night. Carrying a candle over my wool rug, I found next morning a three-inch spot of wax. How can I get it out? —Lakewood, Ohio.

A: Scrape up all you can with a dull blade. Next, hold several layers of facial tissue over the spot and run a fairly warm iron over it. This is to melt the wax so it can be blotted up by the tissue. When no more can be blotted, sponge with cleaning fluid. If the rug has latex backing, don't use gasoline. Cleaning used for dry cleaning clothes is OK. (Copyright, 1973)

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the king of diamonds, noting the fall of East's jack. South wasn't alarmed, however, because the slam was cold if either hearts or trumps broke favorably.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a low heart, got to dummy with the nine of spades and ruffed another low heart.

When the hearts broke badly, South led another trump to dummy. If the trumps broke 2-2, he could take the top diamonds safely and ruff his last diamond with dummy's third trump.

When West discarded once again, South "carelessly" led the deuce of diamonds from dummy as his third try for the slam.

CHANCE TO RUFF

This gave East the chance to ruff with his worthless six of trumps. This was a trick for nothing!

Actually, East's ruff gave South the slam. South won the club return, led a diamond to the ace and got to his hand by ruffing a heart. Then he cashed the queen of diamonds, discarding dummy's losing club. The rest was easy.

If East refused the bait by declining to ruff the low diamond, South would have to take the queen of diamonds. He would then have to draw trumps to safeguard dummy's ace of diamonds, and he would wind up losing a diamond and a club.

East should work this all out when the low diamond is led from dummy. When an expert opponent seems to have lost count of trumps and is offering you a trick for nothing —look for the hook!

Compact dryer buy

Puzzled about what type of compact dryer to get for your apartment or mobile home?

Consider two things: Where in the home do you plan to use the dryer? And, do you cook with gas or electricity?

If you plan to store your new compact in the kitchen, you may want to select one that uses the same fuel as your range. But if you're going to keep the dryer elsewhere in the home, an electric model probably will best suit your needs.

Freezer foods

In packaging foods for freezing, make sure the seal is very tight. This is an important precaution that insures keeping moisture in and the air out.

The Gospel according to Boone

BY MALIA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent staff writer

It may have been "A New Song" that Pat Boone was singing Sunday, but to most of the people in the audience it must have seemed as if time had stood still.

Despite the many years that have passed since "Love Letters in the Sand" and "April Love" hit the top of the charts, the man who made them popular had seemingly not aged one year.

The clothes were right in the height of mod fashion and the white shoes, which had been Boone's trademark, had platform heels, but everything else was the same. And no one was disappointed for apparently the mellow tones and the friendly, informality of the man were what they had come to hear.

Boone and his troupe of entertainers had come to Appleton from Hollywood to give two performances as part of Applefest. The shows were sponsored by the Fox Valley Key 73 organization, a group consisting of a number of denominations interested in bringing the gospel to as many people as possible through various endeavors.

The show Sunday probably was one of the major attractions Key 73 has had and while it had no preaching in it, it could be called a sermon in song for many of the numbers were gospel-oriented. The rest was good solid family entertainment.

It started out the way this kind of a show should, with Boone himself. There was no warm-up and none was needed for the people had come to hear the singer and that was what they got immediately.

Pat Boone in Appleton

To establish immediate rapport, Boone went into the audience to shake hands — all the way to the back row and then into the bleachers on both sides of the Appleton High School-East auditorium.

The entertainer even managed to get in a plug for Applefest — via the Garden of Eden story — assuring everyone that the apple Appleton was honoring was not really the fruit of sin at all, but a nice, healthy nutrient.

After that, he was on easy street with the audience, which included many who hadn't even been born when Boone was at his height. That apparently didn't matter to the young, who clapped and sang with the singer when asked and even seemed to enjoy the "oldies but goodies," such as "Tutti Fruti" and "When I Lost My Baby."

He was more than ably assisted by The McCrary, a gospel singing group of brothers and sisters, who belted out the songs as if they had been singing them all their lives.

They not only added a nice balance to the mellow tones of Boone, but brought in rousing numbers that all but brought the audience out of their seats on a number of occasions.

The clapping got so loud at times

Mayor's budget to include pool funds

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Mayor James Sutherland will not put an executive budget in the hands of aldermen this week, as originally anticipated. When he does, however, it will include $650,000 for a swimming pool.

The mayor hopes to get his executive budget proposal to aldermen next Monday. The original budget timetable called for it to go to the council Wednesday, but delays in getting state figures for shared taxes have been the primary factor forcing the delay.

Finance Director Reynold Running said if he doesn't get the state figures by Wednesday, he'll have to go on the a basis of estimates. The final figures could be plugged into the budget later, although that prospect doesn't please the mayor.

"A lot of decisions have to be made based on these figures," Sutherland pointed out today.

For one thing, the state shared taxes will have an impact on the final tax levy limit placed by the state on the city's 1974 budget. That limit, in turn, will influence officials on what they decide to spend for.

The mayor completed most of his work with department heads on the proposed 1974 spending package last week. The last meeting — with the department of public works —ended at 1:30 a.m. Friday.

The original budget deliberation timetable called for presentation of the executive budget to the council Wednesday. It would be published on Oct. 25, and the finance committee would start hearings Oct. 29. A public hearing will be held Nov. 5, according to the timetable that Running believes can still be adhered to, and adoption could come Nov. 12.

Final publication of an adopted budget and tax rate must come by Nov. 20, according to a provision in the recently-passed state budget.

The city was notified in August that the state would allow it a $284,000 tax levy increase in 1974, based on a 9.5 per cent increase over this year's levy. That was appealed by Running, however.

The appeal was based on the fact that the state will allow the city's overall spending — from all sources of revenues — to increase 6 per cent over 1973. Running belives that would allow the city to increase its levy by more than $284,000, which he said is a must because salary and wage increases alone could take that much Running said today that he understood the state shared tax figures were ready. That has not been confirmed, however, and if they are not in Running's hands by Wednesday, he will have to go with earlier estimates of the state Department of Revenue which called for slightly more than $2.7 million in shared taxes for the city in 1974.

"I hope we don't have to go on the basis of estimates, because we want to give aldermen a budget that means something," Sutherland said today.

Running said the executive package as now written includes $650,000 for a new swimming pool, presumably the indoor-outdoor variety that the special swimming pool committee recommended be attached to Appleton High School-West in a report issued in September.

The study committee report, which said Appleton had the "poorest" swimming pool availability among area medium sized cities surveyed, has apparently prompted the mayor to include the figure in his 1974 proposed spending package. The park and recreation commission has already supported the $650,000 for a swimming pool be placed in the 1974 budget.

Moratorium on nursing homes may be useless

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

There is the possibility the region is or soon will be overbuilt in skilled care nursing homes. A recent health planning study committee recognized this danger and has urged a six- to nine-month moratorium on new construction.

However, the moratorium may have little effect since federal and state legislation — and bureaucratic implementation of that legislation — have confused the health planners and the nursing home builders on what they can or should do.

One health planner said the most severe impact might be federal legislation which could retroactively deny certain key federal assistance eligibility to residents of certain nursing homes.

Dr. Raymond Plue, Chilton, chairman of the Lake Winnebago Areawide Health Planning Council special committee on long-term care, said the committee will recommend the moratorium at the annual council meeting Thursday night. Council approval is expected, but the impact of that action may be difficult to determine.

Plue said his committee found that as of Dec. 31, 1972, there were 3,464 nursing home beds in the eight-county area of Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet, Fond du Lac, Waupaca, Waushara, Green Lake and Marquette. Of these, 3,290 are for skilled care patients — those needing skilled registered nursing care and physician supervision, but not hospitalization.

He said another 533 skilled care beds are being constructed or are planned for construction, and another 780 are being proposed for construction, representing a 38 per cent increase over the existing bed totals.

The committee is urging only the 533 be built until a clearer picture of need can be seen, he said.

The Plue committee study also revealed many elderly persons not needing skilled nursing care are occupying those beds for lack of other facilities in limited or personal care and secondly, 301 skilled care beds in the region are vacant on a given day, normally.

There are other indications the skilled care nursing home need could be reduced, including programs to put elderly in foster homes and a proposed state study to keep the elderly and handicapped at home, instead of institutionalized.

The foster care program, called adult alternate care, is under way in Winnebago and Outagamie counties. Ellie Paulsen, coordinator of the Outagamie program, said she expected requests would increase in the new program.

Also, she said the county welfare department was having no trouble placing the persons needing skilled care in nursing homes — when foster care would be inadequate. She noted one nursing home had vacancies.

Lt. Gov. Martin Schreiber recently announced the state is seeking federal funds for a four-year pilot program aimed at keeping elderly and handicapped at home by providing a full range of services. The study would explore the alternatives to institutionalizing persons who don't require skilled nursing care.

Plue said other programs or projects that could reduce the pressure on nursing homes are meals on wheels which provide hot meals for elderly, apartments for elderly in Oshkosh and changing state elderly institution roles.

The ultimate control on excessive nursing home construction probably would be a certificate of need legislation at the state level, but such legislation has failed to be approved in past sessions. A new piece of federal legislation which may be effected by Dec. 1 would be a beginning toward such control.

That federal legislation would prevent unauthorized nursing homes from handling residents who would be receiving certain federal assistance, such as Medicaid and Medicare.

Presently, the Lake Winnebago council and the state health planning council have sought to have some influence on nursing home construction, by recommending for or against the construction. The recommendation would be forwarded to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Lake Winnebago council has been in contact with some nursing home projects, but has been hamstrung because of the uncertainty of the federal stance.

Peggy McGaffey, council health planner, said the federal legislation would "only be a beginning" toward controlling over-construction. She expected a state certificate of need would go much further, in addition to complementing the federal law by covering areas not covered by it.

Plue expressed concern about the suddenness of the nursing home construction projects. He said he expected they would put additional pressure on the already-short supply of licensed practical nurses and registered nurses.

He said one factor that must be considered is that by about 1985, the elderly population should be leveling in numbers.

Shouting match erupts over alleged favors

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent staff writer

An attempt this morning by a member of the Outagamie County Highway Committee to explain his newspaper statements and John Doe testimony relating to alleged gifts and favors to committeemen erupted into a shouting match that ended with a threatened adjournment of the meeting.

Principals in the brief, noisy exchange were Supvs. Eugene Kloes and Charles Wussow of Appleton and Daniel Williams of Combined Locks.

Supv. George Kroes of rural Kaukauna, committee chairman, left the meeting room at the peak of the dispute, returned momentarily, raised his arms and commanded, "This stops now or I'll close the meeting. One way or the other. There's people sitting out there," he said as he pointed toward the highway office lobby.

Hostilities surfaced shortly after Kloes, second-year member of the committee, said criticism of the committee had "gotten out of hand."

He blasted Supv. Nick Karras of Appleton for statements quoted in The Post-Crescent on Sunday which related to a conversation Karras said he had last June with a retired highway machinery salesman who told of having to give favors and cash gifts to highway officials involved in purchasing.

Karras and the salesman testified at the county's John Doe investigation. The salesman has denied making the statement to Karras.

"Here you have a blatant charge ... that hasn't been run down," Kloes remarked, pointing to the story about Karras' conversation with the salesman.

"It hangs over everybody whether you want it to or not," he told other committeemen.

"I don't believe there ever was any evidence of criminal activity involving the highway department," Kloes said.

"And there isn't now," Kroes interrupted.

The Post-Crescent, Kroes said, likes to "smear" when it can "get at a couple of supervisors or the highway committee."

Kloes insisted that Karras' comments about payoffs and gifts be proven or disproven.

He also emphasized that he and other supervisors petitioned for a John Doe into suspected problems at the county Health Center and not problems at the highway department.

But he said he was subpoenaed to appear at the Doe, was placed under oath and told the truth. In response to Doe questions, Kloes recalled that he had admitted getting free meals while on the highway committee but said he knew nothing of payoffs.

"I never made a statement about payoffs," Kloes explained.

"You'd be in court if you did because there never has been any," Kroes replied.

"Did you offer to go (to the Doe) or were you asked?" Williams wanted to know of Kloes.

Then he hit a nerve when he told Kloes that "...whoever signed it (the petition for the Doe) was dumb."

Williams made unclear innuendos about what apparently was a personal, financial matter involving Kloes.

"That's personal. It's not public record," Kloes shouted.

"Well, I'm making it public," Williams hollered.

Apparently making reference to meals and drinks bought for committee members by equipment salesmen, Williams said "...it's been going on for 40 years and nothing was said about it until you opened your mouth."

He continued. "If I get another offer for a fishing trip, I'll take it. I've never turned down a meal and I never will."

Watershed study plans on review

About 70 representatives of organizations, planning agencies and industry have been invited to attend a joint state Department of Natural Resources Great Lakes Basin Commission meeting Tuesday morning when initial plans for the second of a three-phase Fox-Wolf watershed analysis will be reviewed.

The meeting is not open to the public, but only to a group recommended by the East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. Organizations, such as the American Association of University Women, the Sierra Club and the League fof Women Voters have been invited.

Dr. Rahim Oghalai, water resources planner for the DNR division of environmental protection, said the second phase study will involve $1.86 million in federal funds and $100,000 in state money. If federal money is approved by Congress and the President, the study could start in about a year.

The three-year study, called a Level B study, will be more detailed than the initial study, from which 23 appendices on resources in the Great Lakes area have been prepared and will be released soon.

A third phase study also is anticipated, but that "is a long way off," said Oghalai.

The Fox-Wolf area includes the Upper and Lower Fox and the Wolf rivers and their vicinities.

The meeting Tuesday will be in the community room of The First National Bank of Appleton

Spice raps Woehler's cuts

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent staff writer

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice fought this morning to have overtime pay restored to his budget, charging that Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler's actions indicate that he "doesn't trust the department heads."

Spice's charges came as the finance committee opened its review of the 1974 executive budget this morning.

Woehler, contending that economy moves have to be made to meet the state budget limitations, took all requests for overtime pay and for extra help out of all individual budgets and set up a separate budget of $12,000 to cover all departments for those expenses.

The $12,000 is less than half of what was requested by the sheriff's department.

Woehler's response to Spice's charge was that it was Spice's "guilty conscience speaking."

This exchange, which had followed an earlier exchange over whether the funds should be classified as overtime pay or extra help pay, prompted a request from Committee Chairman

Fox, Wolf navigation

Navigation on the Lower Fox River from De Pere to the mouth of the Wolf River and on the Wolf from its mouth to New London will close at midnight Saturday, Nov. 3, according to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The budget requests from the sheriff totaled $735,417 for his office, the traffic police, jail, radio and process server. This was pared to $703,168 by Woehler with almost the entire reduction being in overtime pay.

Woehler also cut requests for a new copy machine, a lie detector and some copy machine supplies. Spice said he "could live" without the new equipment but said he needed the supplies

The proposed department budget does not reflect any wage increases for next year. Contract negotiations are now under way.

The 1973 budget for the department totaled about $692,000.

$2.8 million proposed for Calumet budget

CHILTON — The proposed 1974 Calumet County budget calls for expenditures of $2,812,820, an increase of $365,515 over estimated sperding for 1973. A hearing on the proposed budget will be at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 31.

The expenditures would require a tax levy of $1,268,395, calling for a tax rate of $4.45 per $1,000 equalized evaluation That rate is 14 cents more than the $4.31 required by the 1973 budget.

The biggest increase in the budget was in the charities and corrections cartegory, which is set at $1,060,690, an increase of $142,807. Social service administration shows an increase of $115,000, or some 330 per cent. But, according to County Clerk Donald Schwobe, this is partly due to new accounting procedures which require that all expenses, not just those covered by county payments, be included in the budget. At the same time, amounts for this category to be received from state and federal sources have been included in the revenue listings. Aid to dependent children also took a rise of some $30,000; Calumet Homestead costs increased about $95,000 due to increases in labor wages and operation.

Other increases are General Government, $354,325 up $63,712; protection of persons and property, $240,275, up $36,996; the sheriff's budget increased $25,000 due to increased help and county paying the juvenile officers a salary which state aids had been paying; Health, $79,005, up $16,413; education and recreation, $296,255, up $33,489, including appropriation of monies for the county library planning committee, historical societies and snowmobile trails;

Conservation and development $54,500, up $2,800, and county highways $578,930, up $80,642. Other expenses were listed at $148,790, up $53,048, plus the $51,460 police radio outlay for a new communications department. This is partially state funded and the revenues offset this.

Revenues expected to be received total $1,551,433, up $243,126.

Flap brews over student rights

NEENAH-MENASHA — A precedent-setting court case in Wisconsin a few years ago ruled that schools can't tell a student how to dress or when to cut his hair.

Within the pear the state of Wisconsin has clarified its laws regarding when and how a student can be suspended or expelled from school.

A court case in Iowa found for the students on a question of whether or not they could wear black arm bands in silent protest of the Vietnam war.

Wisconsin laws have told schools that they cannot deny schooling to a 16-year-old girl who gets pregnant.

These are a few items on a lengthening list of laws and precedent-setting court cases that are providing students with more and more assurances of the rights they have within walls of the school. The laws and precedents are scattered over states and time, but if a certain Wisconsin State Senate bill is confirmed, it won't be like that anymore.

Senate Bill 659 is, to say the least, far-reaching. It reiterates a lot of laws that already exist in the field of student rights, and it creates several more. It says students have the right to distribute and post literature in school without permission from school authorities.

It says student publications will be controlled by students and can't be censored by the administration or teachers. It says they can form and participate in any kind of political or social organization. And it ensures them "due process" in disciplinary action.

The bill does a lot of things for students, much to the displeasure of Neenah-Menasha school superintendents.

As far as Neenah Supt. Donald Scott is concerned, there's absolutely no need for the bill. School officials, he said, are already aware of the rights that students have. "I don't know why it's necessary to pull all this together and inform them (students) of their rights," he said.

But is was necessary, according to the bill's main sponsor, 8th Dist. Sen. James Flynn. Necessary because of significant lack of information on the part of school boards, administrators parents and students, as to what rights students have. His aim, Flynn said, was to calrify the constitutional rights of students, subsequently helping school boards clarify school rules and avoid litigation.

But Scott is still worried about the bill. Educators, he said, are facing enough problems working with students to help them become responsible law-abiding citizens. "I see in this bill the possibility of encouraging young people to adopt the attitude that they have the right to do almost anything they want to do around school," he said. Respect for authority, he added, has been eroded far enough, and bill 659 would encourage more of it.

Scott can see students flaunting a bill like 659 and "any control we have over the kids is going to be eroded, though I don't like the word control."

Menasha's Supt. Alan Osterndorf doesn't like the student rights bill either, but for somewhat different reasons than Scott. Osterndorf sees 659 as ignoring what he believes is the basic concern of schools —the education of the whole child. The bill, he said, creates so many legal procedures a school must follow that he foresees education becoming secondary in some cases. For instance, if the bill was carried to an extreme, it could cause some counseling procedures to get caught up in a legal framework and lose the principle aim of helping a student.

One of the laws the bill sets down is that a student be given 10 days notice before disciplinary action is taken against him. Osterndorf pointed out that asking a student to remain after school for special help could be construed as "disciplinary action."

Osterndorf doesn't think the bill is in keeping with what the community at large expects of its schools. He suggested that parents would prefer to see the schools operate as an extension of the home. And the rules and regulations outlined in Bill 659 certainly wouldn't be operable in a home situation, he said.

Osterndorf also pointed to a recent Gallup poll which indicates the community would like to see children instilled with more discipline, to see that children understand the consequences of irresponsibility.

Bill 659 is also too global, Osterndorf said. He questioned how much of it is directed to college students, to high school students, yet the bill could have an impact rigt down through kindergarten, he said.

Osterndorf doesn't see the intent of the bill as an assurence to students of their right to education. Instead, it's just a "conglomerate of rules and regulations."

It's not seen that way by students, though. Although they too have expressed their reservations over the bill, they also see a value in it.

Adrienne Dick, president of Armstrong High's Student-Faculty-Administration Council, aid "the intent is really great," but as it's written, she and the SFA have a number of objections.

The SFA Council, in fact, have sent a letter to Flynn questioning several aspects of the bill. They wonder whether faculty advisors would be able to advise student editors, without raising the question of censorship. They suggest that 10 days written notice for disciplinary action may be unworkable. And they question whether prohibition of ability grouping, another aspect of the bill, would make special education classes illegal and could outlaw even football teams, which are selected on the basis of ability.

Miss Dick does see, however, where a student rights bill would be a valuable thing to have. Though she doesn't think it would have much effect on Neenah High, it could be valuable in other state schools. She said it's amazing to hear of what goes on in other schools in the state places where dress codes are still enforces and school boards still force unconstitutional regulations on students. Miss Dick said many of the laws contained in the student rights bill are already on the books. Compiling them in one place would make it clear to administrators what they can and cannot do.

Lea Peot, student council president at Menasha High, also sees some rough spots in the bill, but like Miss Dick sees a value in it. Students, she feels, would feel a lot more comfortable expressing their views if they were assured they had the right to do so. She believes now that many students hesitate at voiding disagreement in the school because they are unsure of the consequences of their action.

Woman in fair condition after Sunday shooting

A 25-year-old Appleton woman was listed in fair condition today at St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she is recovering from an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the shoulder.

The woman's 27-year-old husband was confined to the Outagamie County jail pending court action for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest in relation to the shooting incident, which took place about 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the couple's west side residence.

The woman was treated for a bone fracture and severe shoulder muscle damage from the 12 gauge shotgun blast.

The woman reportedly told an officer that she had shot herself while alone in a bedroom because "we have had many family problems."

Police said the husband and a 22-year-old male friend were present in the home at the time of the shooting, but that neither were in the bedroom. Both men had been drinking, police said.

The shooting reportedly followed an argument between the couple, in which the man accused his wife of selling his $5,000 coin collection, which she denied.

Police said the husband became abusive when they arrived and questioned him, and that the defendant later started throwing chairs at officers near a second-floor interrogation room at the police station.

The man was expected to appear this afternoon before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Steinmetz, who has been a marriage counselor for nine years, also will conduct a seminar Thursday at the Embassy.

The daylong event, sponsored by the WCAMH Education Committee, will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m.

Police & fire beat

Two persons received apparently minor injuries in a two-car accident at the intersection of Forest and Joseph streets about 4 p.m. Saturday.

One driver, Douglas R. Lehmann, 16, 900 S. Walden Ave., sustained an arm injury, while the other driver, Anna M. Roeland, 63, route 2, Menasha, received a head injury.

Police said the Lehmann auto was headed south on Joseph and the Roeland car east on Forest when the two vehicles collided in the open intersection.

Stephan P. Johnson, 35, 1817 N. Birchwood Ave., sustained minor body injuries in a two-car accident at the intersection of Lawrence and Summit streets about 8:50 p.m. Saturday.

Police said Johnson was driving east on Lawrence when his auto was struck by the second car, heading south on Summit and driven by Jonathan K. Heeren, 17, 1621 Ravinia Place.

Three persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of injuries they sustained in a two-car accident at the intersection of Harding Avenue and Jackson Street about 4:15 p.m. Saturday.

Injured were Kathryn A. Keller, 18, 1932 1/2 S. Jefferson St., with possible internal injuries; Chanda R. Keller, 1, same address, with head injuries, and Mary E. Schuhart, 18, 435 Dove St., Oshkosh, with leg injuries. All were riding in the Keller vehicle, which police said was headed south on Jackson.

The second car, driven by Paul C. Haas, 16, 214 E. Harrison St., was moving west on Harding from a yield sign.

Police said both autos swerved but were unable to avoid the collision.

George L. Bassett, 39, 128 N. Oneida St., received an arm injury when his car, headed west on College Avenue, broke off a traffic light standard at the intersection with Badger Avenue about 2:10 a.m. Sunday.

Orville E. Defferding, 1222 W. Capitol Drive, told police that the rear window of his 1962 model car was broken by a thrown rock while the vehicle was parked in the Post Corp. lot in the 300 block of N. Superior Street late Saturday or early Sunday. Damage was estimated at $125.

Police are investigating several vandalism complaints, in which persons spray painted signs on the exteriors of buildings late Saturday or early Sunday.

Police said the defaced buildings included the Lawrence University Music-Drama Center; the Fox River Paper Co., 401 S. Oneida St.; a Prange's warehouse in the 200 block of S. Appleton Street; Riverside Paper Corp., 800 S. Lawe St.; the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 905 S. Oneida St.; city park property, including the Meade Park pool; Post Corporation, 306 W. Washington St., and the De Noble real estate agency, 514 E. Wisconsin Ave.

Police are investigating a late Friday incident in which a 16-year-old girl reportedly was found unconscious in the Gillett Highlands area after taking a barbiturate tablet and drinking some wine.

Two persons reported finding the girl and taking her to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where she was revived, refused medical treatment and refused to cooperate with police.

Under questioning later at the police station, she told an officer that she had taken the tablet and wine. The girl was released to her father's custody.

Beautification project considered for award

MADISON — A Waupaca County highway beautification project on State 10 has been named as one of 16 highway projects in Wisconsin to be nominated for consideration in the sixth annual "Highways and the Environment" award competition of the United States Department of Transportation.

Wisconsin entries have won awards for 10 projects since the program was started in 1969.

The Waupaca County beautification submitted was a landscape screening an auto salvage operation between Fremont and Weyauwega. Raymond Moe, Waupaca County highway commissioner, said an estimated 1,000 trees were planted in the federally funded landscape operation which cost an estimated $10,000 to $11,000.

Many of the trees died and were replanted, he said. The effort to screen the salvage yard was instituted at the suggestion of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson during Johnson's term as President.

Harold Fiedler, Madison, state highway engineer, said the project was carried out in 1966 and 1967 and involved planting of a variety of trees and shrubs near the intersection of State 49 and State 10.

Appleton man charged with disorderliness

A 24-year-old Appleton man has been charged with discorderly conduct after he allegedly forced a Hilbert man to drive him to Appleton Sunday evening.

The complaint was filed in the Calumet County Sheriff's Department in Chilton. According to the complaint, Mrs. Rita Burns, 730 Main St., Hilbert, called the sheriff's department at 5 p.m. Sunday and said that a man entered her house and demanded to see her husband. She told him to leave their property.

He left and she said she saw him flag down a car. The car was driven by Elmer Schmitz Jr., route 2, Hilbert, it was later disclosed.

At 5:19 p.m., a collect call was received by the Calumet County Sheriff's department from the Appleton Police. Schmitz had gotten out of the car at Michael's Bowl, Sherwood, and phoned the police, telling them he was being forced to drive the man to Appleton. He allegedly said the man was acting like a "crazy man."

Calumet County officers were sent to the scene and the man was taken into custody and booked. He was later released on $50 bond.

former highway committee chairman Ervin Conradt admitted that he and Williams went on a Canadian fishing trip, compliments, in part, of an equipment supplier.

The across the table exchange was spiked with swear words.

Wussow entered the fight when he told Williams he and Kloes told the truth when asked, which he said some other supervisors don't always do when the county executive's office is involved.

Williams then accused Wussow of always trying to "get" County Executive Alvin Woehler. "Woehler's a friend of mine. He's not a friend of yours," Williams snapped.

At one point Kroes pointed to Kloes and charged, "This here all came from your gang at Karras' (restaurant). No place else."

The only member of the five-man committee to remain silent was Supv. Bernard Tillman of Grand Chute who was quoted in Sunday's story as saying the Doe probe has been "a disgrace to Outagamie County." He was critical of Kloes and Wussow.

Acting Circuit Court Judge R. Thomas Cane, who presided over most of the Doe proceedings, recommended last week that the county board adopt a code of ethics for county officials and employes.

His recommendation was believed to have been, in large part, in response to Doe testimony about free meals and gifts to highway committee members.

The committee, which usually meets every Monday for the full day, adjourned after only about an hour today because, as Kroes explained, Highway Commissioner Clarence Brownson is on vacation and there was no other business.

to such gospel tunes as, "You Get a Friend" and "Come Together," that the words were completely lost.

To round out the program, Boone had brought with him a young comedian, Greg Shideler, whose highly animated presentations, from kittens purring to jets and explosions, all with his voice, brought a lengthy round of applause, and set the stage for Boone's finale.

The last part of the program quieted the audience as they tried to catch every word of Boone's story of how religion had helped him adjust his own life and his career.

And when they had listened and applauded and settled down, Boone brought back The McCrary and ended it with "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man from Galilee," which must have made this the swingingest revival meeting Appleton ever had.

Police & fire beat

The details of an accident last Wednesday were incorrectly reported in Saturday's edition of The Post-Crescent.

The story should have stated that a car driven by Raymond J. Weyenberg, 54, 3234 N. French Road, was heading south in the 800 block of S. Lawe Street when it struck the rear of a car driven by Boyd Q. Radcliffe Jr., 43, 230 E. Coolidge Ave.

The Radcliffe car was then pushed into the rear of a third car, driven by Perry K. Ostorero, 24, 1778 Bartlein Court, Menasha.

The original story had reported that Ostorero's car had struck the rear of Weyenberg's auto.

Syria nor Egypt has given casualty figures.

Egypt reported intense air battles over the northern Nile delta Sunday and claimed 15 Israeli planes had been shot down there. Israel announced that its planes had bombed three air bases 50 to 100 miles north of Cairo.

The Israeli tanks punching into Syria moved up to the town of Sasa, 21 miles southwest of the capital. The Israeli command claimed that its artillery was shelling the outskirts of Damascus, but AP Special Correspondent Hugh A. Mulligan reported from outside Sasa that the Syrians' 130mm Soviet guns were zeroing in on the dusty road to the capital.

"Keeping the Israeli spearhead going is diffult because of murderous Syrian artillery fire," he said. "The Israelis are not having much success in knocking out these long-range Soviet guns firing from the front and flanks."

Israeli fighters were reported attacking the Syrian batteries, but they were defended by Soviet surface-to-air missiles.

"The difference this time around is that the Syrians have the sophisticated weaponry and they know how to use it," an Israeli surgeon told Mulligan at a field hospital.

A Syrian communique claimed the Israelis had been beaten back on three fronts. It said Syrian forces destroyed 65 tanks, three artillery batteries and a number of vehicles and antitank batteries and shot down five Israeli jets during Sunday's fighting.

As yet there was no report of the appearance in the fighting of Jordanian troops which King Hussein announced on Saturday he had sent to Syria. Contingents of Iraqis and Moroccans already had been reported fighting in Syria, and on Sunday night the Saudi Arabian radio announced that King Faisal has also sent troops to Syria. It did not say how many.

Syrian Information Minister George Saddikni said Sunday that Syrian forces were holding firm against the Israelis. He discounted boasts made by Dayan a few days ago that Dayan would soon be in Damascus.

"I want to assure the general that the world's oldest city will never welcome him with open arms. It is a city that knows how to become a gravyard for invaders," Saddikni said in the first news conference given by a high-ranking Syrian official since the war began Oct. 6.

In other developments:

— Egypt charged at the United Nations that Israel had dropped delayed-action antipersonnel bombs on towns in the Nile delta. A Syrian envoy charged Tel Aviv with dropping the same kind of bombs on the suburbs of Damascus.

— The French tovernment asked Libya to explain reports that French Mirage jets were fighting with the Egyptian air force. France agreed in 1969 to sell Libya 130 Mirages on condition they would not be used against the Israelis. Israel charged Sunday that Mirages were used in Egypt's Sunday offensive and said it shot two of them down.

— The U. S. government was considering proposing a ceasefire along present battle lines, linked to an opening of negotiations for a final peace settlement. Both the Arabs and Israelis have rejected such a ceasefire, but U.S. government sources said as the war drags on they might soften their position.

— The Kuwait government announced that representatives of Arab oil nations will meet in Kuwait on Tuesday to discuss oil prices and the war.

News in brief

French navy hunts sea victims

CALAIS, France (AP) — French navy frogmen continued their hunt for five men believed trapped in a dredge that overturned last Thursday in a storm off the northern coast of France. Two men were rescued Thursday, two were found dead, and a third survivor was taken from the sunken wreck on Sunday. He said he was in a small air pocket in a flooded compartment.

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Early returns from general elections Sunday indicated a split vote. With 10 per cent of the vote counted, unofficial returns gave the conservative Justice party and the democratic socialist Republican Peoples party each 34 per cent. The Justice party won 46 per cent of the vote in 1969 and a majority in the assembly, but the army ousted the government in 1971.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The easing of proposed sterilization rules is expected to be recommended by a federal population expert. Dr. Louis Hellman of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the proposed new rules may infringe on state laws and be cumbersome. The new rules call for written informed consent of every patient and set up a system of committee and judicial review. He said he will propose easing the rules to keep open to the poor an option that the rich have.

DETROIT (AP) — Any proposal to impeach President Nixon should await the outcome of the Senate investigation of the Watergate affair, Sen. George McGovern told an American Civil Liberties Union meeting. McGovern said Sunday he feels vindicated for his overwhelming defeat at the polls last November since the corruption and abuse of power he spoke out against have come to the surface. He also said the House would have no choice but to begin impeachment proceedings if Nixon refuses any Supreme Court order to turn over White House tape recordings relating to the Watergate investigation.

BELOIT, Wis. (AP) — Beloit fire officials today said arson was to blame for a smoky blaze early this morning that closed the Aldrich Campus school.

Six weeks ago, firemen were called to a Catholic grade school in the city, where they discovered fires set in seven different places, they said.

St. Thomas school has been closed since the fire, but hoped to reopen this week.

The fire at Aldrich was discovered as the school's 1,600 ninth and 10th grade students began boarding morning buses. Fire officials said the school suffered extensive smoke damage.

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) —The mood of the American public is growing more pessimistic, according to the latest Gallup Poll. The proportion of Americans who say they are satisfied with the future facing them and their families has declined 11 per cent in the last 10 years, down from 64 per cent to 53 per cent, the latest survey showed.

One of two kidnaped officials is released unharmed in Mexico

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — The honorary British consul in Guadalajara was released by kidnapers who held him for four days, but an industrialist who also was kidnaped last Wednesday was still missing.

The consul, Dr. Anthony Duncan Williams, returned home Sunday night soiled and unshaven, but unharmed.

Although the same Communist group claimed to have kidnaped Williams and Fernando Aranguren, a 36-year-old cooking oil manufacturer, Williams sad he had not seen the other man and learned about his abduction through radio reports.

A message from the 23 September Communist League last Thursday said unless 51 political prisoners were released and $200,000 paid, the two men would be killed.

The families agreed to pay the ransom, but the government refused to release the prisoners.

Ford will be confirmed, barring the 'unexpected'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate committees have started background investigations on vice presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford as a prelude to confirmations hearings.

Majorities in both house already have said they plan to vote for the 60-year-old Michigan congressman, unless something unexpected turns up in his background.

Ford, already given a vice presidential office, jet plane and entree to intelligence briefings and Cabinet meetings by President Nixon, said he doesn't know of anything that could cause problems.

Meanwhile, Ford has confirmed that he did not include contributions of $11,500 in his signed declaration to the House clerk after the 1970 elections, saying it was because he had endorsed the contributions over to the Republican National Congressional Committee for other Republican campaigns.

The chairmen of the House Judiciary and Senate Rules Committees said Saturday, as Ford's nomination was submitted to Congress, they planned full probes on the House GOP leader.

Rep. Peter W. Rondino Jr., D-N.J., said "we intend to see to it that the implementation of the 25th Amendment is in full compliance in word and history with the legislative history that created it."

He said committee investigators would review Ford's background and financial situation. He said he hoped hearings can start within two weeks. Television coverage will be permitted, Rodino said.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., held a preliminary meeting of the Senate Rules Committee, at which it approved his proposal for a full FBI investigation of Ford.

Cannon has said it would be at least two weeks before public hearings could start, but committee sources said that the schedule would be reviewed at a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The committee approved Cannon's proposal to open the hearings to television coverage.

An Associated Press poll showed that at least 57 senators and 225 House members planned to vote for the nomination barring derogatory disclosures. Fifty-one votes are needed for a majority while in the House 218 votes are needed.

Whalley gets $11,000 fine for kickbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Congressman J. Irving Whalley of Pennsylvania was fined $11,000 and sentenced to three years probation in federal court today for his guilty plea to charges he obtained thousands of dollars in kickbacks from his employes.

The 71-year-old Whalley limped into U.S. District Court and stood before Judge John L. Smith Jr. with his head bowed while his lawyers pleaded for leniency.

Attorney Martin J. McNamara of Washington in a reference to the lenient sentencing of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on tax evasion charges, said, "a question comes up for equal justice." But he said Whalley, unlike Agnew, did not wage an abusive campaign against the Department of Justice.

"He did not take bribes — he did not engage in a campaign of vilification," against the Department of Justice, McNamara said.

Another defense attorney, Nathaniel A. Barbera of Somerset, Pa., told the court that Whalley was regarded as "a pillar in our community, our county."

"This is the only stain on his life — a horrible stain," Barbera said, adding, "I believe he is truly mortified by what he has done."

Whalley, a Republican who served in the House for 12 years and did not seek re-election in 1972, pleaded guilty July 5 to one count of mail fraud and two counts of obstructing justice.

His staff members were said to have kicked back 10 to 20 per cent of their pay for a total of about $50,000. Speaking in a broken voice Whalley said, "This has been a terrible ordeal on me and my family. I'm extremely sorry for what I have done.

"It's difficult for me to express the true sorrow that's in my heart. I wish I could undo my wrongs — I have to live with them the rest of my life."

Packers' Del Gaizo calls tie 'a shame'

BY LEE REMMEL
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Time and tie(d), if you will pardon the expression, wait for no man.

This was the Packers' overriding concern in the waning hours of a summery Sunday afternoon following a 10-10 stalemate with the huge and tenacious Kansas City Chiefs in County Stadium.

"It's tough to be tied by a team," said quarterback Jim Del Gaizo, acutely aware that half a loaf is hardly sufficient to accelerate the Packers' pursuit of the NFC Central's pacesetters, the Minnesota Vikings, still unbeaten and now two games in front.

"If you get your fanny kicked and still come out with a tie, that's one thing. But when you should win and you get tied, it's a shame."

What made the non-decision particularly unpalatable to the former Dolphin was the knowledge that the offense had erupted from recent frustration with a 315-yard performance, punctuated by John Brockington's first 100-yard day of the season, and had been complemented by a defense which confined the Chiefs to a modest net of 150.

Coach Dan Devine, meanwhile, was realistically addressing himself to the possible long range consequences of the standoff, the second in five games for the Packers, now 2-1-2.

"I'm not as concerned as to what effect today's game will have on the team, but what it may mean down the line.

"As far as playing next week, we're going to give it our best shot," Devine quietly assured. "I'm not concerned about that. I'm more concerned about what the tie will mean in our division race."

Del Gaizo, suddenly thrust back into the quarterback spotlight by a second quarter injury to Scott Hunter, attributed the deflating denouement in part to a "flagrant interception" off his lefthanded delivery in the fourth quarter.

That Bobby Bell theft, as it turned out, did short circuit the Packers' final scoring opportunity of the day, which had found them penetrating to the Kansas City 33-yard-line.

But Chester Marcol, twice the victim of Wilbur Young's depredations, traced the deadlock to a first quarter boomerang, occasioned by the Chief defensive end's block of a routine, 24-yard field goal attempt.

"We drive all the way down to their 17-yard-line and instead of our coming out with three," said Marcol in supreme disgust, "they wind up with seven."

That, he suggested, with an admirable grasp of basic math, represented a 10-point differential.

The "seven" bloomed from the aftermath of that misadventure, which saw the Chiefs' Nate Allen appropriate the loose ball and return it five yards to the Packer 39, putting Len Dawson and associates in enviable field position.

Marcol was unhappily forthright about this swift and disconcerting turnabout.

"How can you kick a field goal when there's a guy three yards in front of you?" He wanted to kow how the first man in there (Young) "was three yards in front of me when I kicked it. When you can see their numbers, it's too close."

Coach Dan Devine said, "I honestly don't know what happened on the kicks that were blocked. I do know that the snap was a little high on the first one. Yet Bill Tobin (a Packer aide) timed it on the sideline and the kick was off in 1.3 seconds, which is acceptable time.

"But I'm not faulting the snapper. The penetration by Kansas City could have been the primary factor, and the kick also could have been a little low. I'm sure there was some penetration on both kicks.

"It probably was a combination of all three on the first one, a high snap, penetration and low kick. And on the other one that was blocked, it probably was a combination of two—penetration and a low kick, I would say. But I'm just guessing until I see the film."

Surprisingly enough, the runaway Allen was overtaken following the miss by Marcol's holder, Ron Widby, hardly among the Packers' more fleet afoot.

"He was leaving me fast," Widby laconically reported. "What made me

Mets pull out win in bizarre game

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets are back home today with a split in the first two games of the World series after battling the sun, umpire Augie Donatelli and the Oakland A's.

All three elements gave the National Leaguers fits Sunday before the Mets pulled out a zany, 10-7, 12-inning victory in Oakland.

"I think we'll look better in New York," says Don Hahn, a Met outfielder who had to deal with the treacherous sun in the Oakland Coliseum. "The Coliseum was an awfully tough park to field in ... one of the toughest I've ever been in."

Tug McGraw

Cleon Jones verified Hahn's report. The Met left fielder lost a ball in that torturous sun in the first inning, giving Joe Rudi a gift double in a two-run Oakland uprising.

"It was the worst," said Jones, "the absolute worst. I've never played in a major league ballpark where the sun is that bad."

The Mets weren't exactly thrilled with the umpiring, either. They had an opportunity to break a 6-6 tie in the 10th inning with runners at first and third and one out.

But Donatelli called him out on a bang-bang play at home.

"He never touched me," said Harrelson, talking about the close play at home with A's catcher Ray Fosse.

Donatelli's decision brought several Mets storming from the dugout. Like Harrelson, they thought that Fosse missed the tag. Willie Mays, the on-deck batter, was literally down on his knees pleading with the umpire.

"There's no question in my mind that I was safe," Harrelson said after the storm had died down and the Mets had locked up Game No. 2, "but there was a question in Donatelli's mind."

The double play killed off the Mets for the moment, but they weren't completely dead as it turned out. They scored four runs in a whacky 12th inning to break the deadlock. Then, George Stone came into the tense game and nailed it down for New York after Tug McGraw gave up the A's final run.

The whole scene was vividly reminiscent of the Mets' September pennant drive, when all kinds of unlikely crazy bounces helped them win the National League flag.

"We felt like we would never give up," said McGraw, who pitched six fine innings of relief before needing help himself. But you gotta believe it—we've been doing things like this for the last eight weeks."

When the Mets made a rush for the National League flag, they capitalized on every conceivable break in the baseball book.

Ditto Sunday.

Trailing 3-2, the Mets scored four times in the sixth inning after a walk to Cleon Jones, a single by John Milner and a hit batsman that loaded the bases. Hahn beat out an infield single for one run, Harrelson singled to right for another and then Jerry Grote and Hahn both scored on an infielderror.

After the A's scored their fourth run on a double by Reggie Jackson in the seventh and tied the score at 6-6 with a two-run rally in the ninth, the Mets took command of the flow of the game.

Denied earlier opportunities to score, they finally put it out of reach in the 12th as Mays singled home the go-ahead run and the Mets pushed across three more tallies on two errors by Oakland second baseman Mike Andrews. It was one of five errors

Chester Marcol (13) of the Green Bay Packers glances to the side as his field goal attempt bounces behind him after hitting Wilbur Young, right, of the Kansas City Chiefs. Marcol's attempt from the Chiefs' 24-yard-line rolled all the way back to the Packer 39 where it was receovered by Nate Allen (48) of the Chiefs. The blocked kick led the Kansas City's touchdown. Surprising Saints sock Lions

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The surprising New Orleans Saints have done it again.

Soundly whipped in their first two games and roundly ridiculed as the worst team in the National Football League, New Orleans has rebounded with successive upset victories.

Sunday's 20-13 decision over the Detroit Lions was similar in one key respect to last week's 21-16 victory over the Chicago Bears: the Saints simply outplayed both teams.

Detroit Coach Don McCafferty put it best. "We were outplayed, outcoached and outhit," he said. "The Saints hurt us inside, outside and overhead."

The victory over Detroit marked the first time since 1969 the Saints have managed to win two in a row, but Coach John North insisted he wasn't surprised in his team's turnabout after losing 62-7 and 40-3 in their first two outings this season.

North was named Saint head coach barely two weeks before the season and immediately began juggling players.

"I think we've gotten ourselves together," said North. "We've had a lot of people coming and going but we're working together as a unit now. I think we've proved that the past two weeks."

The offense's greatest moment Sunday was a 45-yard drive in the closing minutes, with fullback Bill Butler's running one yard for the winning touchdown with 39 seconds to play.

Moments earlier North had made one of his first major on-the-spot decisions as a head coach.

With the score tied 13-13 and less than two minutes to play, Happy Feller put the Saints ahead 16-13 with a 12-yard field goal.

However, Feller was knocked down on the play and the Saints had the option of taking the three points or accepting the penalty and a first down at the Lion two-yard line.

North decided to forego the three points and Butler scored two plays later.

The only other Saint scores came on a one-yard run by Howard Stevens—who set up the winning drive with a 48-yard kickoff —and field goals of 10 and 18 yards by Feller.

Detroit's points came on field goals of 34 and 29 yards by Errol Mann and a 33-yard pass from quarterback Greg Landry to wide receiver Earl McCullouch.

Bay defense surprises Chiefs' Francis Peay

MILWAUKEE — Quick Packer-Chief quotes:

Wilbur Young, Chiefs (on blocking two Chester Marcol field goals): "I lined up the same way each time —head up over the center. On the first one, I got in real far. I went over center, put my hands up and got kicked in the face by the ball.

"On the second one, I didn't get in as far but I got my hands on it."

"How did I do it? I put my hands under the center and just lifted him up."

Dan Devine: "It's too early to decide on a quarterback for next Sunday's game (at Los Angeles). But today's game shows you need two quarterbacks."

Jim Del Gaizo: "I thought I played well except for the flagrant interception that took us out of field goal position in the fourth quarter.

"I had two interceptions again. The first one was a bush league play. I forced it into a good crowd. There's no excuse for that. The other one I can't feel too bad about because it was a good defensive play."

"Overall, I was throwing the ball the way I know how to throw it, and that's encouraging.

"I thought Scott (Hunter) played a helluva first half, too. It's a shame he got hurt."

Ken Bowman (on the flu that forced him to leave the game in the second quarter): "I'm still a little woozy. I started barking early this morning."

Ron Widby: "On that first field goal I just put the ball down, turned to look up and I looked right into Wilbur Young's face mask. That's how close he was."

Francis Peay, Chiefs: "I had no idea the Packer defense is as tough as it was. Last year as a teammate I was watching them perform and they performed very well, but it never really dawned on me how physical they really were. I think they (the defense) can carry them. They are sound, very sound.

"I don't know if they miss Robby (Dave Robinson). If they have, they've adjusted very well. But I don't think one man makes a team."

Devine again: "Yes, we thought of going for a field goal when we had fourth and-1 at the Kansas City 2. But, with the wind at our backs and their taking over the ball at the 2, and if you do a good job of holding them in there and because they would have to kick into the wind if you do, you should wind up with good field position anyway. And that, of course, is what happened, even though we were stopped at the 2. And we came away with seven points, so we didn't lose anything."

Hank Stram, Chiefs coach: "We had such terrible field position most of the ball game we never had a chance to do anything."

Devine again: "The wind was no more of a factor to us than it was to them. I do think the wind was a factor in the fourth quarter when they made an interception. If the wind had been at our backs, we might have done differently."

Willie Lanier, Chiefs: "The secret of the Packers' running success against us? Execution. That's how we stopped them in the second half —by execution."

Stram again: "The reason we were playing conservatively there in the closing minutes is because it's hard for the Packers to score. They do everything the hard way, so we didn't want to give them something easy."

Lanier again: "The Packers can throw the ball, but they don't have to when they have two backs like MacArthur (Lane) and (John) Brockington. Why throw the ball when you can run?"

Stram again: (on a fourth quarter holding penalty call on Jack Rudnay): "It was ridiculous — somebody way down field made the call."

Devine again (on the same penalty): "I think he (Rudnay) tackled Jim Carter. Carter went down. I know. I don't know for sure about the holding, but I saw Carter go down and that would be my guess."

Grand Prix test, Can-Am series won by Donohue

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Mark Donohue of Reading, Pa., ran away from the field Sunday at Laguna Seca Raceway to win not only the $75,000 Monterey-Castrol Grand Prix, but also the 1973 Canadian-American Challenge Cup series.

Using a backup engine bolted into his turbocharged Porsche minutes before the race began, Donohue started from 16th place in the 24-car field, but quickly worked his way through traffic.

On the 15th lap, Donohue, winner of the last five races in the eight-race million-dollar series for unlimited cars, fell in behind early leader George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., driving a Vasek Porsche.

Donohue got by Follmer, last year's series winner, on the 45th lap, behind the hill on the back side of the twisting, 1.9-mile road course.

Follmer pitted on the same lap with a blown turbocharger, and for the last 21 laps, Donohue was out for a Sunday drive, already having lapped the second-place car, the UOP Shadow driven by Jackie Oliver of England.

Krause spurs Vikings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Minnesota's 6-foot-3 safety, Paul Krause, spoiled what could have been Steve Spurrier's finest hour.

Two fourth-quarter interceptions by Krause kept Spurrier from leading San Francisco to an upset over the Vikings, who remain unbeaten after five National Football League games, not to mention five preseason exhibitions.

Spurrier, a surprise starter in place of 17-year vete n John Brodie, in whose shadow he has played for six seasons, complete 31 passes for a team record as the 49ers piled up 400 yards on offense to the Vikings' 220.

But the Vikings led all the way and won 17-13 on a 12-yard, disputed pass from Fran Tarkenton to John Gilliam in the first quarter: an 80-yard, 13-play drive in the second period with Chuck Foreman hurdling over from a yard out: and a 22-yard field goal by Fred Cox at 1:02 before the final gun.

"Spurrier was slow to start, but came on in the second half said 49er Coach Dick Nolan. "It was the best game we've played, both ways."

Spurrier's passes riddled the Viking defense in the second half when he completed 18 of 23 for 205 yards and capped an 80-yard third-period drive with a seven-yard touchdown throw to Ken Willard to cut the Minnesota margin to 14-13.

The 49ers rolled 80 yards again in the fourth quarter to first down on the Viking 12, and it was at this point Krause made his first interception and carried it four yards to Minnesota's 14.

Three minutes later Krause again intercepted a Spurrier pass intended for Doug Cunningham and ran 24 yards with it to the 49er 40. A 13-yard Tarkenton-Gilliam pass and five rushes moved it in to the 49er 15 and Fred Cox kicked his 22-yard field goal.

Two other 49er efforts ended in missed field goals in the second quarter by Bruce Gossett from 47 and 27 yards, the first one hitting the right goal post. Gossett booted a 28-yarder and a 41-yarder for the six points San Francisco scored in the first half.

"We played good enough to win," said Willard, who led the 49ers' rushing with 52 yards in 10 tries.

Nolan and 49er defensemen Ralph McGill and Dave Wilcox insisted that Ed Marinaro touched the Tarkenton touchdown pass to Gilliam, but the officials ruled McGill tipped it before Gilliam caught it while kneeling then stepped over the goal line.

Vic Washington's first fumble, recovered by Eller on the 49er 32, set up that score.

Tarkenton threw 22 passes and completed 10 for a net of 124 yards, and Gilliam caught seven of these for 107 yards. Rookie Chuck Foreman was the game's leading rusher with 71 yards in 22 carries, but averaged only 3.2 yards a try against 6.2 he had in the Vikings' first four victories.

Gene Washington led 49er receivers with eight passes for 118 yards.

Bengals prey on Steelers

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers' high-scoring offense lurched to a sudden halt Sunday and quarterback Terry Bradshaw offered no excuses.

"We can't score points if we don't have the ball," said Bradshaw after the Cincinnati Bengals relied on ball control and a relentless defense to oust the Steelers from the National Football League's unbeaten ranks 19-7.

Preston Pearson, the Steelers' leading rusher with only 39 yards, agreed. The day belonged to the Bengals' swarming defense and some newfound offense.

"I don't know what they were doing but they really kept us from doing anything," said Pearson.

Cincinnati's German-born kicking specialist Horst Muhlmann, who single-footedly beat the Steelers with five field goals last year in a 15-10 victory, proved to be a nemesis again.

Muhlmann, who has had his problems this season, more than doubled his season total with four field goals of 20, 19, 20 and 41. He entered the game with three in eight attempts. His only miss was a 52-yard boot.

The rest of the offense was carried by rookie Charles "Boobie" Clark, whose bull-like charges kept the ball from the Steelers.

The 6-foot-3, 240-pound running back, a 12th-round choice out of Bethune-Cookman, Fla., College, gained 112 yards in 28 carries to become the sixth player in the Bengals' six-year history to surpass the 100-yard mark.

"Clark was the guy who made their offense work," said the Steelers' defensive tackle Joe Greene. "He had great second effort."

Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown pointed to the emotional factor.

"Obviously, we were in an up state. We had an awful head of steam up. It was big game for us. Clark is getting better all the time and will be a real good one," said Brown.

The victory lifted Cincinnati back into the American Football Conference Central Division race—a game behind the Steelers. The Bengals are 3-2.

"The best thing I can say," said Steelers' Coach Chuck Noll, "is that we are 4-1. I hope we're able to absorb this. It can be good for us over-all."

Cincinnati's defense didn't allow the Steelers a first down for the first 10 minutes and sacked Bradshaw three times in the first quarter.

Pittsburgh appeared headed for its first shutout since 1964 when a deflected Bradshaw pass wobbled into the hands of Ron Shanklin and set up the Steelers' lone score in the fourth period on a one-yard run by Pearson.

Alone and beyond the Bengal secondary, Shanklin turned the freak play into a 67-yard gainer before Tommy Casanova caught him at the five-yard line.

Giants' Webster irked by play of QB Snead

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — "If I'd had a backup quarterback I probably would have gone to him," said New York Giants football Coach Alex Webster.

"No, I would not have liked to be in there. I thought Norm could do a better job," said young Tom Blanchard who has never played at quarterback for the Giants despite his listing as third string helmsman, he became number two when Randy Johnson quit the team last week.

"I didn't feel any mounting pressure," said Norm Snead when asked whether he was bothered by being the only quarterback the Giants could call on confidently.

They spoke after the Washington Redskins handed the Giants a 21-3 drubbing Sunday in the wind-swept Yale Bowl, the Giants' temporary home until their new quarters are ready in New Jersey.

Webster was dejected, Blanchard worried and Snead determined to return to basics after their team made numerous errors, two of which led directly to two of Washington's three touchdowns.

"It was the worst game the Giants have played since I took over," Webster said, looking back to his 1969 coaching debut in the National Football League. His team is 1-3-1 for the season; Washington is 4-1.

Snead, who threw 32 times or 19 completions, 138 yards and 4 interceptions, said, "We're going to have to get back to the basic fundamentals of football. We've got to block, run, throw, catch."

One errant Snead aerial was snagged by Washington cornerback Pat Fischer who returned the ball 67 yards to the New York 13-yard line with 4:35 left in the third period. Three plays later, the Redskins were stalled on New York's seven-yard marker by the tough Giant defense, forcing Curt Knight to try a field goal. He made it but was roughed up by New York's Pete Athas. The Redskins took the penalty, picking up a first down on the Giants' four. Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen handed off to Larry Brown who ran around right end for a touchdown.

Washington scored for the last time when 245-pound Dave Robinson intercepted another Snead pass and lumbered 28 yards for a touchdown.

Stabler sparks Raiders

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It was time again for John Unitas to reexamine his status, time for Dan Fouts to enjoy his first triumph and for Ken Stabler to enjoy the fruits of his labors.

Stabler, finally Oakland's starting quarterback after three frustrating seasons, survived a shaky first half Sunday and passed the Raiders to a 27-17 victory over the San Diego Chargers.

While the Raiders, 3-2, were creeping within a half game of Kansas City in football's American Conference West, much of the drama of the afternoon belonged to Fouts, making his debut as a starter for San Diego in place of the legendary Unitas.

The spindly 22-year-old rookie from Oregon completed only 12 of 30 passes, but twice he moved the Chargers ahead with third-quarter touchdown passes.

"I don't think I've ever seen a rookie quarterback that impressive in his first start," said San Diego Coach Harland Svare, who saw Unitas' debut in 1956. Unitas spent the game on the sidelines, handing an occasional tip to Fouts, who said later

"It's like going to the dictionary to look up a word."

The 40-year-old Unitas, who came to San Diego this year after 17 seasons with Baltimore, talked uncertainly of his future.

"I feel like I can play one or two more years, but right now Fouts should be playing. The Chargers have to be looking forward to the future."

Stabler, meanwhile, was looking to his own future with anticipation after a tacit vote of confidence from Coach John Madden.

Stabler completed just five of 11 passes in the first half as Oakland sputtered to a 6-3 lead. But Madden, noted for juggling quarterbacks in the past, stuck with the left-hander, who responded by hitting 8 of 11 for two scores in the second half.

"I feel really secure," said Stabler. "They've given me reassurance that the job's mine and I don't have to look over my shoulder."

The touchdowns covered 54 yards to Cliff Branch and 26 to Bob Moore. Branch made another big play in the fourth period, drawing an interference penalty for rookie Willie McGee in the end zone that set up Marv Hubbard's go-ahead touchdown.

Judy Rankin wins at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Judy Rankin battled fast greens and high winds Sunday on her way to a sudden-death victory in the $35,000 Tucson Ladies Professional Golf Association Tournament.

Her winner's purse of $5,250 boosts Miss Rankin's earnings to within $500 of the top LPGA money winner, Kathy Whitworth.

Jets get boot out of New England

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Chuck Fairbanks of the New England Patriots is learning fast as a rookie-coach in the National Football League.

He also is most candid when it comes down to nitty gritty.

Fairbanks, who left the security of the job at Oklahoma to accept pro gold, was outspoken Sunday after the Patriots were beaten by the New York Jets 9-7 on three field goals by Bobby Howfield and rookie quarterback Bill Demory.

"The Jets controlled both our lines, on offense and defense," Fairbanks said. "Other than that, it looked like two poor football teams to me."

Asked if the Patriots, in the wake of a victory over Baltimore, had taken the Jets, minus quarterbacks Joe Namath and Al Woodall, too light, Fairbanks bristled and said:

"How can this team take any opponent lightly? I mean really. I don't see how anyone is picking us to win. I wouldn't let them bet with my money. On what basis do you possible pick us to beat anyone?"

While Fairbanks was criticizing his team for an "inept performance...a complete lacklustre performance," Namath and Jets Coach Weeb Ewbank joined in praising Demory, a former University of Arizona star summoned when Broadway Joe suffered a shoulder separation three weeks ago.

"He's a cool kid—he went right to it and did a good job," said Namath, who watched with his valuable right arm in a sling. "The big thing in a situation like that is to make sure you don't have any turnovers. He didn't make any mistakes."

Demory handed off most of the game to John Riggins (132 yards) and Emerson Boozer (73 yards), while passing only seven times. He missed on his first six aerial attempts, but then hit on a key 11-yard gainer which set up Howfield for a 22-yard field goal with 1:56 left.

Black Hawks tie, 1-1

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota's Buster Harvey had been awarded a penalty shot after being pulled down from behind on a clean breakaway by Chicago rookie Dave Kryskow.

It was the classic confrontation: a forward alone with the puck at center ice and a goaltender alone with his thoughts. The first player to make a mistake would lose the battle of nerves.

The North Stars were leading 1-0 in the middle of the second period. A mistake by the goaltender would have made it tough for the Black Hawks to come back.

Esposito blocked the shot, held the North Stars off the rest of the way, and came away with a 1-1 tie when Stan Mikita's goal late in the period knotted the score.

In other National Hockey League action Sunday night, the Boston Bruins trimmed the New York Islanders 3-2; the Los Angeles Kings and New York Rangers tied 1-1; the Philadelphia Flyers pounded the Detroit Red Wings 5-2, and the Vancouver Canucks topped the Buffalo Sabres 3-1.

Bruins 3, Islanders 2

Boston's Ken Hodge flipped the rebound of a Bobby Orr shot over fallen New York goaltender Billy Smith to lift the Bruins to their 3-2 decision over the Islanders.

Kings 1, Rangers 1

Former Ranger Bob Nevin beat New york goaltender Ed Giacomin with a nifty fake on a breakaway, catapaulting Los Angeles into a 1-1 tie with the Rangers.

Flyers 5, Red Wings 2 . The high-flying Philadelphians scored their third victory without a loss, pounding Detroit 5-2 on the strength of two goals scored while a man short.

Canucks 3, Sabres 1

Orland Kurtenbach scored two third-period goals to break a 1-1 tie and help Vancouver take a 3-1 decision from Buffalo. Buffalo's Jim Lorentz scored a first-period goal and Vancouver's Don Lever had scored in the second before Kurtenbach's contribution.

In Sunday's WHA action, the Whalers edged the New York Golden Blades 2-1 in overtime; the Crusaders clipped the Cougars 3-2 in overtime; the Minnesota Fighting Saints dropped the Toronto Toros 5-2; the Edmonton Oilers topped the Aeros 5-2, and the Winnipeg Jets clobbered the Vancouver Blazers 6-3.

Xavier protest 'correct' but may fail

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

Xavier's protest of an official's decision which gave Green Bay Premontre a chance to kick a game-winning field goal after time expired Friday doesn't appear to have much chance of being upheld.

Fox Valley Christian Conference officials agree Xavier's protest is correct but the league doesn't have any procedure for handling protests.

Vern Wollerman, FVCC commissioner, said, "Jim Kersten, FVCC president, and I got together Saturday night and agreed the officials were in error on their interpretation."

The controversy arose when Premontre completed a pass over the middle with about 10 seconds remaining and hurriedly setup for a field goal. The kick was good but two officials called the Cadets for illegal procedure. Time on the clock expired during the play.

Xavier accepted the penalty and coach Bob Pliska claimed the game was over as the rules state an offensive team doesn't get a chance to replay a down after time expires at the end of a half or game. Xavier based its protest on this rule.

The officiating crew (Jim Fahrenkrug, Lyle Schneider, Jim Payne and Bill Radue) spotted the ball at three different points on the field before setting it down at the 13. Rick Peot's second attempt for a game-winning goal was also good.

WISSA has a rule not to allow any protest of an official's interpretation of the rules. WISSA executive Steve Pavela stated, however, "the board has the right to make an exception to any rule if it is deemed to be in the best interest of a member school."

Pevela couldn't recall anytime a protest had been allowed. "The WISSA rule not to allow protests isn't unique. Several states have similar rules. A protest of this nature should be handled on a conference level."

Pavela said he would have to contact the board chairman when Xavier's written protest is received.

Pliska said, "The protest is as far as WISSA now. We sent letters to Pavela and the entire board. Every official we've talked to agrees our interpretation is right.

"We have a tape of the broadcast that indicates as the ball was snapped flags were thrown by the officials and time expired.

"We have the satisfaction of knowing that if the game were decided by the rules we won the game. An admission by Premontre officials that we had won would be sufficient," he said.

Kersten said, "I contacted Pavela on behalf of Xavier and the conference. Our rules state we follow the association rule on protests and we don't have any conference rule on handling a protest."

O.J. has gained 813 yards

Sure, he was elated over the Buffalo Bills' 31-13 National Football League triumph over the Baltimore Colts Sunday. But the Miami Dolphins were more on his mind. The Bills meet them in Miami.

"We're a running team," he said soon after racing for 166 yards to raise his five-game season total to 813, by far the best in the NFL. "And so are they (Miami).

"I'm sure what we'll try to do is what we've been doing— running at 'em and around 'em. If we don't get behind, we're confident we'll get yards on the ground. If I don't get them, then, (Larry) Watkins will."

Buffalo spotted the Colts three points, on George Hunt's 19-yard field goal, then, came back with Watkins' touchdown.

Meanwhile, Simpson was not doing much. The Colts, with Mike Curtis and Tom Hendricks, taking turns, limited O.J. to 26 yards on eight carries in the first half.

The tide changed for Simpson after the intermission and with Curtis out of action with a left shoulder separation.

Simpson started churning out yards. After scoring a 3-yard touchdown and following quarterback Joe Ferguson's 1-yard scoring sneak. O.J. let loose.

He took a handoff from Ferguson, shook off two tacklers, going left, raced past others and, as he turned to the middle, broke free for a 78-yard touchdown.

The Colts, who gained 143 yards rushing against Buffalo's 259, scored their only touchdown as Bill Olds went in from the one. Hunt also kicked a 22-yard field goal.

The victory was Buffalo's fourth, third in a row, against one loss, and vaulted them into sole possession of first place in the American Conference Eastern Division. Miami, which had been a co-leader, plays at Cleveland Monday night. Baltimore now is 1-4.

Hunter and Brockington should be ready Sunday

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Preliminary indications are that Packers Scott Hunter and John Brockington, injured in Sunday's 10-10 tie with Kansas City in County Stadium, should be available for next weekend's invasion of Los Angeles.

"I don't think the injuries to Hunter and Brockington are serious," Coach Dan Devine said. "As far as K know now, they shouldn't keep them out of next Sunday's game.

"Hunter has a sore chest and Brockington has a sore knee."

Devine, replying to a question, added, "If we'd had to have them finish out the game if no one else was available, they could have finished out the game."

Hunter missed the second half and Brockington all of the fourth quarter.

"I've got a bruised cartilage in the sternum," Hunter reported following the game, "and I'm still a little short of breath. The first timee I got hurt it was just a bang on the head.

"That" he quipped, "is the first time I've ever gone down twice in the same round."

The third year quarterback was relieved by Jim Del Gaizo for one play after being shaken up in the second quarter, then for the balance of the afternoon after being falled by Marvin Upshaw on a scramble shortly before the half.

Eagles win on late TDs

ST. LOUID (AP) — "I don't remember any ending like this," Roman Gabriel insisted, and neither did the rest of the Philadelphia Eagles.

The lowly Eagles were apparently headed Sunday for just another routine loss until the brawny Gabriel, a veteran of 12 pro seasons, unfurled his right arm in the game's final minutes.

An the St. Louis Cardinals, instead of gaining a third National Football League triumph, were stunned 27-24 by two late Gabriel touchdown passes including one at the final gun.

"We haven't been quitting and today we finally made it," proclaimed the 33-year-old Gabriel, who unloaded his bombs to Harold Carmichael and rookie Don Zimmerman after St. Louis took a 24-13 lead with 4:41 to go.

"They say a quitter never wins and a winner never quits," the 6-foot-4 quarterback observed. "To win one like this keeps you going."

Gabriel, the NFL's Most Valuable Player in 1969 with the Los Angeles Rams, completed 29 of 45 passes for 379 yards and suffererd no interceptions.

But until the Cards' Jim Hart hooked up with Ahmad Rashad for 65 yards and the 11-point St. Louis lead, the Eagle rifleman's mark was a more modest 19 of 34.

Then Gabriel whipped passes for short yardage to Tom Sullivan and Tom Bailey, extended his arm for missiles to Carmichael and finally hit Carmichael for 27 yards and a touchdown.

St. Louis needed to kill only a minute and 46 seconds following an onside kickoff but sent Donny Anderson on three runs producing only eight yards.

A fourth-down try by Anderson failed at Philadelphia's 45 and Gabriel, after being spilled for a 10-yard loss, used 34 of 41 seconds remaining to move to the St. Louis 24.

"I knew it would be the last play of the game," said the dark-haired Gabriel, who next fired rapidly to the 6-foot-3 Zimmerman on a slant from the left.

Zimmerman snared the ball at the three in the clutches of two defenders but barreled over the goal line as time ran out.

"The game was in my hands," he reflected. "I felt like I had to score, and I guess that was the reason I did."

Earlier the Eagles had marched 71 yards to take a 7-0 lead in the second quarter on a one-yard Gabriel pass, one of 12 fielded by the 6-foot-8 Carmichael.

But St. Louis closed to 7-3 at halftime, burst to a 10-7 lead on a 21-yard Anderson touchdown run and built its late cushion on Hart passes of nine and then 65 yards to Rashad catch him? Fear—just fear. Fortunately, for me, he had to bend over and pick up the ball, which slowed him down a little."

Aerial defense

Unfortunately for both Widby and the Packers, his timely overhaul did not avert eventual embarrassment. In seven plays, the Chiefs worked their way to the 8 with short runs and passes, setting up Dawson's coup de grace, a pitch to a lonesome tight end, the 6 foot-10 Morris Stroud, who had eluded Ken Ellis and floated in the right corner of the end zone.

Strong safety Al Matthews, the only defender remotely close to Stroud when the ball arrived, conceded that the defense had been artfully duped.

"It was a play action pass and the play looked like it was going to our right," he said, "so I went that way, too. I think everybody did. Then I looked over and Stroud is way over in the other corner, all by himself."

Although the Packers subsequently managed to crash the scoreboard on a 46-yard, with-the-wind field goal by Marcol early in the second quarter, it took them until nearly halftime to get that one back and move out front. And it came on the "second time around."

On the first, a fourth-and-one gamble at the Kansas City 2-yard-line, MacArthur Lane's charge was blunted for no gain by the heart of the Chiefs' front four.

The catalyst in the drive had been a 33-yard canter to the outside by Brockington, who amassed 97 of his 106 yards in the first half before suffering a minor, late third quarter, knee injury, which shelved him for the balance of the afternoon. Only dogged pursuit by safety Mike Sensibaugh, who flung "42" out of bounds at the Kansas City 30, spared the Chiefs a touchdown.

After that one foundered, the Packer defense quickly returned the favor and Jerrell Wilson's 27-yard punt into a stiff wind left the Packers again in highly favorable field position.

The payoff, two plays later, was a 26-yard picture pass from Del Gaizo to split end Jon Staggers at the flag in the right corner.

"That was a play we put in late in the week just to have in that situation," Devine said. "It wasn't in our original game plan.

"Staggers took Allen inside, then broke it to the corner," Devine explained, "and the ball was delivered quite well."

Staggers concurred.

"The ball was definitely there," he said. "All I had to do was catch it. It worked just as it does in practice. It was a beautiful throw."

"The pass was designed to go into the very corner so that if it was missed, it would have just gone out of bounds."

Although 1:24 still remained in the first half, that pinpoint stroke all but concluded the day's scoring. The only breakthrough thereafter occurred early in the fourth quarter when Jan Stenerud, shutout to that point, found the range from 36 yards to cap an 11 play, 51-yard drive and forge the tie.

Mike McCoy, speaking for the Packer defense, had no excuses.

"It was just good execution on their part on that drive to the field goal," he said. "But we kicked a couple of field goals we should have had, too."

The Packers, with second-and-8 at the KC 33, appeared en route to another one of those when Bell interrupted with that fateful interception.

"I never saw Bell," said Del Gaizo, who overall evinced improved radar by completing 6 of 12 passes for 89 yards. "He came out of a blind spot. He never should have been there—he just made a good play."

The Chiefs also had another opportunity in the closing minutes, but a holding penalty and an 11-yard sack of Dawson threw them back to their own 45, out of field goal range.

Dawson, infact, almost presented the Packers with a final, unexpected opportunity when he fumbled after being felled by Clarence Williams, but running back Jeff Kenney fell on it a split second before McCoy smothered him and the leather.

"I'll have nightmares about that fumble," McCoy said with a bittersweet smile. "It was just laying there, but I was just a little too far away."

Sellout string broken

BOSTON (AP) —The Boston Bruins failed to sell out for the first time in nearly 200 games at Boston Garden, drawing only 14,523 fans for their National Hockey League opener Wednesday with the Vancouver Canucks.

The Bruins had played to capacity crowds at home in 164 regular season games and 27 playoff engagements since they last failed to sell out on Feb. 9, 1969, when a raging blizzard hit New England.

The Garden capacity is 15,003.

Rams' strategy prevails

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Harold Jackson, the fleet little wide receiver reclaimed by the Los Angeles Rams, overdid himself in living up to his word.

"The team has done well emphasizing running, but if it needs passing, we'll be ready," the 173-pounder from Jackson State and the Philadelphia Eagles commented recently.

With a 4-0 record and facing the Doomsday Defense of the Dallas Cowboys Sunday, the Rams coaching staff went for a game plan stressing the forward pass. Their plan prevailed 37-31 and the Rams are now one of two undefeated and untied clubs in the National Football League.

Quarterback John Hadl and Jackson, in the first half, hooked up on four touchdown plays Sunday covering 63, 16, 67 and 36 yards.

A 44-yard pass, Hadl to Jackson, set up one of David Ray's three field goals. That one, the only Rams score in the second half, traveled 35 yards. The others went 27 and 37.

"That had to be my best game ever," declared Jackson, who stands just 5-feet-10 but makes up for it with speed that once clocked 9.3 seconds for the 100-yard dash.

"I think I had a game a couple of years ago when I ran up 157 yards against the New York Giants, but this was the best. Hadl is the best man I've ever had throw to me."

Winning their first four games, the Rams relied primarily on the running game, a fact which didn't bother Jackson at all.

"I'm glad to be back and the running game is winning," he pointed out, adding that he and Hadl had been working daily on pass patterns and timing.

Jackson was traded to Philadelphia after being activitated five games with the Rams as a rookie in 1969. He promptly became the league's leading receiver—last year catching 62 for 1,048 yards, both top in the NFL.

Hadl has turned in 16 games during a 12-season career when he's thrown for 300 or more yards, but he commented the first two quarters of the Dallas game constituted "the best half I have ever played."

Los Angeles led 34-14 at the intermission. Roger Staubach came back to throw touchdown passes of six and ten yards to Otto Stowe in the second half.

Minnesota, the other undefeated NFL team, entertains the Rams in two weeks.

The Rams may have lost two running backs for next week's Green Bay game—Larry McCutcheon and Tony Baker. The former, who went into the Dallas game as the second leading rusher in the NFC, suffered a pulled hamstring, and Baker received a shoulder separation.

Series . .

made by the fumbling A's.

"I feel sorry for Andrews, just like I felt sorry for Felix Millan the day before," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams, talking about Millan's costly error that helped the A's beat the Mets 2-1 in Saturday's opener.

The erratic fielding produced a total of six errors in the game, which at times took on the aspect of a sandlot affair. Adding to the sandlot atmosphere was the time of the game—a record four hours and 13 minutes for the World Series. Also a total of 11 pitchers was used by both sides, and that tied a world series record.

Of course, that wicked sun didn't do much to help the professional aspect of the game.

Not only did Jones lose a ball in the high sky, but so did Mays. The sun swallowed up Deron Johnson's drive in the ninth inning as Mays skidded to his feet in a last-ditch try for the ball.

It fell for a double, igniting the A's rally.

With the Oakland sun behind them, the Mets hoped to find their place in the sun Tuesday night in the third game of the series at Shea Stadium.

Tom Seaver will pitch for the Mets and Jim "Catfish" Hunter for the A's in a battle of righthanded aces. Manager Yogi Berra feels he could have a good hand.

Jabbar's foul trouble aids Sonic victory

SEATTLE (AP) —Close guarding by Spencer Haywood forced Kareem Abdul-Jabbar into early foul trouble to enable the Seattle SuperSonics to take a 109-100 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Sunday.

Jabbar was maneuvering without the ball at the top of the key late in the second period when he was called for an offensive foul on Haywood. Buck Coach Larry Costello moved fast.

The score was 58-48 in favor of the Bucks when Jabbar left, at the half it stood at 61-58 in favor of the Sonics.

Jim McDaniels scored an NBA career high of 29 points and pulled down 18 rebounds to lead an 80-64 board domination by the Sonics. Haywood added 26 points and cleared 13 rebounds.

"I just knew I had to score and rebound for us to win," McDaniels said. "It feels good to be on a team like this. I guess the big thing with me is if I have the shot I take it."

Coach Bill Russel gave high marks to Mahdi Abdul-Rahman and Dick Synder but added "despite everyone else's good game, the heart and soul of this team was Haywood. we won this game because we took advantage of situations such as Jabbar's foul trouble."

Milwaukee brought Jabbar back early in the fourth period and ran off 10 points to reduce Seattle's margin 97-93, but eight points down the stretch by Snyder preserved the victory.

Bob Dandridge led the Bucks with 24 points.

Buck guard Lucius Allen said "they caught us on a tired night," referring to a three-day road trip.

"Seattle played good basketball," said Costello, "and its style is just like the old Celtics, a lot of fast break and a few set plays."

Falcons' Lee, Hampton spur Bears' downfall

ATLANTA (AP) — "My wife, my money, even my hound dog—I'll trade them for just one touchdown," said the banner draped inside Atlanta Stadium Sunday before the Falcons took on the Chicago Bears.

The sign was intended for the frustrated Falcons who had not scored a touchdown in three consecutive games.

And on this Sunday, the signmaker was rewarded handsomely.

Quarterback Bob Lee and running back Dave Hampton triggered a nearly flawless offensive display as the Falcons destroyed the Bears 46-6 before a crowd of 47,342 while 11,508 no-shows chose to watch on home television with 58,850 tickets sold.

"I think we've found a chucker," said Falcon's Coach Norm Van Brocklin after Lee's uncanny passing was responsible for touchdown passes of three and 41 yards, while connecting on 11 of 13 for 181 yards.

Hampton, meanwhile, ran for two more scores on bursts of 24 and two yards, while covering 90 yards on 19 carries. Joe Profit scored Atlanta's other touchdown on a five-yard run.

The field goal was still very much in evidence too for the Falcons as Nick Mike-Mayer was a perfect three-for-three on boots of 23, 32 and 33 yards.

But Atlanta needed a period to get warmed up, running its scoreless string to 13 quarters and trailing Chicago 6-0 on Carl Garrett's 15-yard run.

Then Lee took charge, guiding Atlanta to 17 second-period points and adding three touchdowns in the third quarter within a four-minute span.

Ironically, Atlanta owns two of the highest scores in the NFL this season with Sunday's 46 points and an opening day 62-7 rout of New Orleans.

"When we're hot, we're hot," said defensive end John Zook who led the defensive charge of the Falcons, limiting the Bears to but 158 yards, 21 passing. "But when we're cold, we're really cold," he added.

Coach Abe Gibron, whose Bears fell to 1-4, remarked, "We're too good a team to have this happen to us two weeks in a row."

The Bears had stumbled to previously winless New Orleans last week 21-16.

Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — John Brockington, something of an intuitive type, had a hunch.

"I had a feeling everthing was going to be right today," said Brock, who had just recorded his first 100-yard day of the 1973 season despite missing part of the third quarter and all of the fourth here Sunday afternoon because of a minor knee injury.

"It was just like the day we beat the Cowboys," the Packers' freewheeling fullback explained. "The same kind of a day in fact. And I always have a good day in Milwaukee, better days than I have in Green Bay. I don't know why."

Brockington had two regrets, however. One of course, was the fact that the green and gold had to settle for a 10-10 tie with the Kansas City Chiefs, the other having to miss much of the second half action.

"Too bad I got hurt," he said ruefully. "I was having a helluva day. But that's life. I figured, the way I was going, I might wind up with 150 or 160 yards today."

Flashing a philosophical smile, he added, "But God said, 'You're only going to get 106. Save some.' "

Brockington, who now has amassed 426 yards over five games in his bid to become the first runner in NFL history to rush for 1,000 yards in his first three seasons, confided, "I did think I was going to break one for a touchdown on that 33-yard run in the second quarter, but I couldn't get past Mike Sensibaugh. Kansas City plays its free safety so deep, or I would have had a touchdown. But you can't get an angle on him (Sensibaugh)."

On the whole, he said he was relieved that his inury was not more serious.

"Willie Lenier (Kansas City's middle linebacker) didn't hit me hard. He heard me grunt and got off me right away. He's a helluva guy—he could have laid on me and twisted the knee, but he didn't."

Striking a positive note, Brockington declared, "The big thing that happened today was that the offense found itself. We should have had a couple more scores, but it was moving today like it should. I think we'll be all right from now on."

Johnson short-circuits Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Denver quarterback Charley Johnson, who has a doctorate in electrical engineering, put his education to work Sunday and completely short-circuited the Houston Oilers.

Noting Houston's insistence on remaining in a man-to-man defense, Johnson wired together a passing attack that included four touchdown passes, three to Haven Moses and one to Bill Van Heusen.

When it was over, the Broncos had blacked out the Oilers 48-20, marking Houston's 16th consecutive regular season loss.

"I was surprised they'd come out and stay in a man-to-man defense all day long," said Johnson, who surpassed the 20,000 passing yards milestone during the game.

"It was just a sign of complete disregard for my passing ability," said Johnson, who completed nine of 19 for 214 yards. "I haven't seen that much man-to-man since the mid 1960s. And I can't remember throwing four touchdowns, either."

Johnson rallied Denver, now 2-3, from a 20-10 deficit in the second quarter to a 24-20 halftime lead and the Broncos doubled their output in the second half.

The Oilers, 0-5 this season, got a 20-10 lead on Skip Butler field goals of 20 and 49 yards—his fifth and sixth consecutive three-pointers—and a 19-yard end around touchdown by Ken Burrough.

But Johnson hit Moses for TD strikes of 19, 33 and three yards and Bill Turner kicked a 32-yard field goal to put Denver in command by the half.

Denver defensive back Bill Thompson got the Broncos started again in the third quarter with a 59-yard return of a Dan Pastorini interception for a touchdown.

Floyd Little, who rushed for 123 yards on 19 carries, tacked on a four-yard touchdown run and Turner booted a 12-yard field goal. Johnson hit Van Heusen on a 62-yard scoring bomb to make it a complete avalanche.

Warriors whip Phoenix, 120-95

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We always seem to bring out the best in the big guys we face," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello.

Maybe that's because the Bucks have one of the best big men in the business—Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Sunday night, Jabbar got into foul trouble and it was the Supersonics' big men, Jim McDaniels and Spencer Haywood, who helped Seattle to a 109-100 National Basketball Association victory.

McDaniels scored 29 points, and the Sonics scored 55 points while Jabbar was on the bench for 11 minutes.

In other NBA games Sunday, Detroit beat Cleveland 95-83 and Golden State beat Phoenix 120-95.

Warriors 120, Suns 95

The Warriors' 60 rebounds compared to 33 for Phoenix proved to be the difference in a game in which the lead was tied 14 times during the first three periods.

Pistons 95, Cavaliers 83

Stars 101, Spurs 95

San Antonio Coach Tom Nissalke said his team's loss pointed up the importance of having a star player.

"We don't have the quality player we can go to to get us a basket ... I don't know when we'll be a good team. Utah has two quality players they can go to—Jimmy Jones and Willie Wise."

Two men report robberies to police Sunday

Appleton police are investigating two robberies reported to have occurred Sunday.

Carl Lumme, 57, 303 N. Morrison St., told police he was attacked about 12:30 a.m. by a husky, teen-aged youth, just after he left a tavern in the 300 block of W. Wisconsin Avenue.

Lumme said the youth knocked him to the ground and took his wallet, containing personal papers and $83. He said the youth ran south toward College Avenue. A patrolman reported finding Lumme's social security card later near a beer tent at Pierce Park.

Michael Frick, 26, 742 Fairwood Drive, Neenah, reported that $25 was taken from his wallet after he was knocked unconscious by a large, dark-haired man outside a tavern in the 1400 block of W. Wisconsin between 7 and 8 p.m. Sunday.

According to police, Frick said he left the tavern and was entering his car when the assailant appeared and struck him on the chin, knocking him unconscious.

When Frick regained consciousness, he found the money missing from the wallet, which he said was replaced in his pants pocket. When he got out of the car, he said, he lost his balance and fell down.

He complained of a sore jaw, but police said Frick had no visible facial bruises.

Woman hurt in assault by man early Sunday

A 21-year-old northside Appleton woman complained of severe back pains after she told police she was assaulted by a man in the 500 block of E. Washington Street about 12:15 a.m. Sunday.

Police gave these details of the incident:

The woman was walking home on the south side of the street and passing a driveway at the rear of the Lawrence University Memorial Chapel when the man reached out from some bushes, grabbed her by the hair and pulled her to the ground.

When she started to scream, the man told her to be quiet, but she continued to scream as he attempted to pull off her coat, and he struck her across the face and arms.

The man fled behind the chapel when a car rounded a nearby corner and flashed its lights on him. The woman, who said the incident lasted about one minute, ran home and telephoned police.

The attacker was described as about 6 feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, with broad shoulders and wearing a blue ski jacket with white lettering on the front. The woman estimated him to be between 25 and 40 years old.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED ABANDONMENT PURSUANT TO 49 CFR 1121

Notice is hereby given that the Interstate Commerce Commission is being requested to issue a certificate of public convenience and necessity permitting abandonment of the line of railroad of the Chicago and North Western Transportation Company extending from railroad milepost 0.2 near Hortonville, Outagamie County, Wisconsin in a southerly direction to railroad milepost 18.3 near Larsen, Winnebago County, Wisconsin, a distance of 10.1 miles, all in Outagamie and Winnebago Counties, Wisconsin. This line includes the stations of Medina Junction, Medina and Larsen, Wisconsin.

The interest of employees will be protected by the "Burlington Conditions," as described in 357 ICC 700.

The reasons for this proposed abandonment are that traffic over the above-described line is extremely low, averaging only 16.6 carloads per mile for the twelve-month period September, 1972 through August, 1973, inclusive; and operating expenses have increased and are increasing to the extent that operation of the line will be unprofitable in the future. Continuation of operation of the line will be an undue burden on interstate commerce, and would deprive applicant and shippers on its lines at other places of the use of salvageable material from the line, particularly the usable 100-pound rail with which most of the line is laid. Estimated total net salvage value of the line is $121,000. Granting the authority sought in this application will not constitute a major Federal Action having a significant effect upon the quality of the human environment.

The name and address of applicant's representative to whom inquiries may be made is Christopher A. Mills, Commerce Attorney, Chicago and North Western Transportation Company, 400 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will rule on this application without hearings unless protests are received which contain information indicating a need for such hearings. In accordance with the Commission's regulations (49 CFR 1100.250) in Ex Parte No. 55(Sub No. 4), Implementation Nat'l Environmental Policy Act, 1969, 340 ICC 431 (1972), any protests may include a statement indicating the presence or absence of any effect of the requested Commission action on the quality of the human environment. If any such effect is alleged to be present, the statement shall include information relating to the relevant factors set forth in Ex Parte No. 55 (Sub No. 4), supra, Part (B) (1)-(5), 340 ICC 431, 461.

Any protest referring to this notice, No. AB-1 (Sub No. 21) shall be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D.C. 20423, not later than November 15, 1973.

Watch stores for 'Truth in Meat'

Look carefully in your supermarket meat counter. Has the piece of beef you've known as "California roast" been transformed into a "Beef Chuck–Under Blade Roast"? Has the old-time London broil been renamed a "Beef Flank Steak"? Or the traditional Delmonico steak reappeared as "Beef Rib-Eye Steak"?

A whole new system of meat labeling, announced in mid-September by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, is now being set up in supermarkets, meat markets and grocery stores from coast to coast. The "Truth in Meat" program is the meat industry's big push to let you know not only what you're getting for your money but also how to cook it.

A voluntary program

The program is voluntary, but the early evidence is that the great majority of stores will participate. Thus, here's what to look for soon in the stores where you do your meat buying:

Each package of meat will be labeled with the name of the animal species (beef, veal, pork, lamb); the "primal cut" —breastorbrisket,shoulder(chuck)-blade; rib, loin, sirloin (hip) and leg (round); and one of 314 (yes, 314) common, standardized retail names. In addition, if a store wants to add its own fanciful name such as "his and her" steaks or "Paradise roast"–it may do so. Hamburger will become "ground beef" or "ground sirloin" or "ground chuck." T-Bone steak will become beef loin T-bone.

The lean meat ratio of ground meat will be labeled and the maximum percentage of fat will be set at 25 per cent.

A variety of booklets and meat identification charts will turn up next to meat counters–giveaways detailing both the "what you're getting" and "how to cook it" angles of the program.

The new system was developed over a period of 16 months by representatives from the meat industry, supermarket chains, U.S. government and business groups, and it has been hailed by the meat industry as "the most significant meat-counter improvement since the introduction of self-service nearly four decades ago."

Should demand information

But I repeat: it's entirely voluntary. In the words of David H. Stroud, president of the Meat Board: "We can't compel all stores to participate...although I believe consumers can. Housewives will demand standardized labeling as they learn its advantages."

And even if the system is widely adopted, it will be just one step toward real consumer information-protection at the meat counter. To be specific, to be able to make essential comparisons in this era, we also want and need:

An extension of the meat industry's meat identification program to include some 250 kinds of sausages and similar products now being sold in the U.S. Sausages are not covered by the new program, but surely the contents of most sausages mystify most of us and, as the types and brands proliferate, our bafflement grows.

A winnowing down of those 314 different "basic" meat cuts to a more intelligible total. Admittedly, the Meat Board has reduced, in Stroud's words, "the endless list of fanciful names" from more than 1,000 to 314–but who can remember 314 different cuts?

Clear labeling and date

A clear labeling of every meat package with the date after which the meat isn't fit to be sold or eaten or with any other understandable indication of the meat's freshness. "High" meat is not an insignificant problem, even today—particularly in ghetto areas.

Some indication on meat labels of the fat-cholesterol content–a life-and-death matter for many Americans.

Utterly objective research on which additives, preservatives, extenders, artificial flavorings and colorings are safe for us to consume and which are not.

And some labeling of the protein content of meat, not just as a guide to how to get the most protein for our meat dollar but also as a guide to how much protein we are buying and consuming and whether we are actually buying and consuming far more than we need. According to one estimate, the average American eats 50 to 80 per cent more protein than he or she needs.

That we will respond enthusiastically to each improvement the meat industry introduces has been amply demonstrated since the start of standardized labeling. As an illustration, even affluent customers with sophisticated tastes are reported buying cuts of meat they formerly avoided in the mistaken belief the cuts were from the least desirable parts of the carcass.

TB skin tests clinics scheduled for Tuesday

The Appleton Health Department has scheduled another in a series of tuberculosis skin testing clinics. In the test, a vaccine is placed under the skin of the forearm. Results are read two days later.

The free, public tests will be given at the Appleton City Hall from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday. Results will be read on Thursday during the same time.

All persons not having had a T skin test and those who have had a negative skin test more than one year ago are encouraged to participate. Those who have experienced a positive reaction should not have the test repeated.

Police & fire beat

Police are investigating a possible vandalism incident about 2 p.m. Saturday at a construction site in the 1800 block of W. Pershing Street, where windows valued at $300 were reported damaged and broken.

Police were not sure if the damage was inflicted by three boys seen leaving the area or by high velocity afternoon winds.

Republicans leary of DNR board nominees

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent staff writer

MADISON — The long delay of the Republican state Senate in taking up the question of confirmation of Gov. Patrick Lucey's two new nominees for seats on the powerful state board on natural resources means that the Republican leadership is hesitating about approving them, knowledgeable capitol sources reported last week.

The question evidently is a bothersome one for the Republicans of the upper house, some of whom explain privately that they regret they have reservations about Thomas Fox of Bayfield and Mrs. Virginia Mc Cormick of Waukesha. They were nominated by the governor several months ago to replace John Potter of Wisconsin Rapids and D. K. Tyler of Phillips.

Mrs. Mc Cormick would be the first woman ever chosen for the major state board policymaking seat, and Fox is held in friendly regard because he served two years as the chief clerk of the Assembly, which means that he was its chief administrative officer and had close and friendly contact with legislators of all political views.

One senator said he had believed earlier that Mrs. Mc Cormick would win approval because of her long record of involvement in resource questions and because it would be politically hazardous to resist the appointment of a first woman to a major state board.

But one leader of the upper house, more influential than most, pointed to Mrs. Mc Cormick's public endorsement of Gov. Lucey's views on such questions as restraining tourism development, land use control, power plant development and others, as outlined in an interview she gave to the news organ of the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, which published it and gave it wide circulation this week.

Mrs. Mc Cormick also said she supports Gov. Lucey's insistence upon a cabinet system of administration of state agencies, which most Republicans resist, and which might mean that Lucey would have control over Secretary Lester Voigt of the big Department of Natural Resources. Under the cabinet plan, the department chief could be retained or dismissed, as the governor desired. Under the system thus far upheld in the state, Voigt and other major department heads can be hired or retired only by the boards whose members are chosen by the governor.

Senate Republican reservations on Fox relate largely to the sensitivity of northern Wisconsin residents and officials, to whom DNR has a vital and constant relationship, about effective regional representation of their interests and concerns. Although Fox now lives in the far north, where he started a law practice a little more than a year ago, he grew up in Chilton, and most recently lived in Madison.

Federal housing plans an 11th-hour approach

OSHKOSH —In two of a series of talks here Wednesday, Wisconsin members of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials (NAHRO) heard two opposite views of the Nixon administration's proposed housing and redevelopment program.

What he called the 11th-hour approach of the Nixon administration to the nation's housing problems says a great deal of the priority held in the Nixon camp, Lt. Gov. Martin J. Schreiber commented in a luncheon address.

He charged that the administration had abandoned the nation's housing policies and had substituted proposals that "are little more than abandonment of the poor, middle income, and elderly.

"The intention of the proposal is to place housing problems in the hands of private enterprise —but it ignores certain hard facts," he declared, "facts like the increasing interest rates, skyrocketing cost of housing and limited availability of low-cost housing."

In Wisconsin, he noted, availability of existing housing is critically short with vacancy rates generally below 3 per cent in the urban areas.

The system of cash payments as proposed has merit, the lieutenant governor said, but without adequate incentives to build new units could "simply mean more money competing for available units, creating an inflationary situation with no guarantee of relief."

Schreiber promised that the state will do all it can and hailed NAHRO members as "a source of hope for injecting vigor into community revitalization."

A massive study of Department of Housing and Urban Development housing soon to be released will indicate failure of a program that was designed to subsidize structures rather than the family or the individual, said Richard Kaiser, acting director, Milwaukee office of HUD.

Programs designed to serve 40 per cent of the population resulted in 6 per cent actually receiving the subsidy, he said.

A basic change in proposals made by the Nixon Administration three weeks ago, Kaiser continued, emphasize direct cash assistance to maximize use of existing housing and to provide freedom of choice. That program would be phased in as techniques are perfected in pilot programs.

It proposes 200,000 units of subsidized housing under 236 and Section 23 leased housing programs and a series of moves to ease funds for rehabilitation loans, reactivate FHA programs in the inner cities and attract private investment in adequate housing for low and middle income families.

"Whatever type of bill evolves," he concluded, "I urge you to take any programs you can get and make them work in this state. Debate all the proposals if you will; but when they come, work with them."

Kaiser said he had visited this city's new Court Tower, a leased housing project for low-income elderly, that morning. "If it is an example of Section 23 housing of the future, it's a fine project," he declared.

Obey seeks to make incumbents pliable

By TIM WYNGAARD
Special to The Post-Crescent

WASHINGTON — Bent on congressional reform, Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wausau, has fathered a unique set of proposals to strip power from senior members of Congress — including one which would accomplish the task by actually handing more power to the speaker of the House.

Obey, a veteran of Wisconsin legislative wars before being elevated to Congress to fill the seat vacated by Melvin R. Laird in 1969, has derived at least a goodly share of his approach from his experiences in the state capital.

And he's called for public financing of campaign costs, for instance, not in the hopes of ousting intrenched incumbents as some reformers would like — but with the aim of making senior congrsessmen more responsive to voters back home and, therefore, more pliable on the floor of the House in terms of reform issues.

Citizen groups such as Common Cause are wrong when they measure the effectiveness of reform measures by the number of incumbents defeated, he said in a recent interview.

The test of the electoral system lies in how many incumbents are seriously challenged, and therefore forced to respond to public pressures, according to Obey.

Obey wants to provide candidates — incumbents and challengers — with a chunk of federal cash to insure that all incumbents are challenged.

All too often, senior congressmen such as George Mahon of Texas, who dominates the appropriations committee, can count on re-election without challenge because of the hopelessness of challengers to raise sufficient cash to run a meaningful race against them, according to Obey.

As a result, the real competition for congressional seats comes in only 60 to 70 marginal districts, he said.

"I want to be able to have the 'Old Bulls' challenged, to make them responsive to pressures from within their own districts," Obey said.

"If they don't have to be responsive to their own constituents, why do they have to be responsive to the rest of us around here?

"If we could provide just $10,000 or $15,000 to each challenger, we would be able to hold them accountable,'" he said of senior powers in Congress.

"Guys who haven't had an opponent for six or seven elections will become more malleable," Obey said.

"All these issues are tied," Obey said, swinging to his attempt to win a reform of the budget process in Congress.

A House committee is considering a proposal for the creation of a super budget committee to oversee the federal spending process, now largely fragmented.

Obey has joined with Rep. William Stieger, R-Wis. to protest the plans put forward by the joint study committee on budget reform, and has co-authored with Steiger a proposal somewhat similar to the legislative Joint Committee on Finance in Wisconsin.

The issue goes beyond that of simple budgetary control, however, Obey indicated.

If adopted as proposed, the "reform" proposal offered by the study committee would to a long way in wiping out many of the reforms made in recent months which have worked to break the power of the "Old Bulls" in the House, Obey said.

The study unit's proposal calls for the creation of a super budget committee made up of members appointed solely by the chairmen of the House Ways and Means and Appropriations Committee.

The plan offered by Obey and Steiger calls for a budget committee named by the Speaker of the House.

Obey maintains that it is easier in the current Congressional climate to spread power to all elements of the democratic caucus by attempting to pressure one person — the speaker — than 40 or more committee powers for reform.

Reform by bolstering the power of the speaker of the House? A novel idea, especially in light of the thought that the system of strong committee chairmen was born decades ago in a revolt against dictatorial speakers wielding excessive power.

"Things are cyclical around here," replied Obey. "You start with a very strong system and abuses, so someone moves to change it. That works for 10 or 12 years, and then it becomes so fragmented that it doesn't work.

"There is no single correct system. It's sort of like driving a car.

"We have become so fragmented around here that we have to start moving the other way," he said of his plan to hand the speaker even more power in hopes of reform in the House of Representatives.

Police & fire beat

OSHKOSH — Four persons were injured in a two-car accident on U.S. 45, south of Winnebago County Trunk U, Town of Clayton, about 10 a.m. Saturday.

Winnebago County police said the Olson vehicle was northbound when a southbound car driven by Rohloff, attempting to make a left turn into a driveway, moved into the path of the Olson car.

Organic gardening is special school project

HORTONVILLE — A "nature-related learning project," providing special education students with an opportunity to develop skills by learning about all phases of organic gardening, was approved last week by the board of education.

Eugene Riedl, the principal, said that the program, which was developed by James Larget and Elaine Anderson, is eligible for federal aids.

Under the course outline, students this fall will begin the year-round program by making a compost pile. Students will rake lawns, offering their services first to senior citizens.

During the winter, students will plan and build a stand that they will later use to sell their produce. They also will plan the garden during that time and start plants to be ready for spring planting.

Riedl explained that through the program the students should better learn how to keep healthy, live safely, how to understand themselves and get along with others, how to communicate ideas, use leisure time, travel, earn a living, learn homemaking, and learn how to appreciate, create and enjoy beauty.

Other skills they will develop include how to handle and adjust to social, technological and physical environments, how to manage money, and how to become responsible citizens.

For example, he said, the goals of making the compost pile are to show students the importance of helping senior citizens and to teach him how to gather the right materials for a compost pile.

Objectives also include learning street and sidewalk safety while walking to homes in the city, and demonstrating the right way to approach a home owner by introducing the group and explaining their purpose.

In related action, the board voted to contract with Cooperative Education Service Agency District 8 for the assessment of handicapped children. Under a new state law, students must be evaluated individually. The service will cost $250 for the rest of the year.

In other business, the board again voted to allow parochial school students the use of the 5 p.m. activities bus.

Reading improvement PTA discussion topic

A little-known program, RISE (Reading Improvements Services Everywhere), will be the discussion topic at the Lincoln School PTA meeting Thursday. It will follow a 6:30 p.m. potluck dinner.

The program, sponsored by the National PTA, is a volunteer tutoring program in reading, staffed by trained parents.

Mrs. Evelyn Pertzsch, Onalaska, the state PTA chairman of RISE, will be the speaker.

The reaction panel will include Ellie Eggener, reading consultant for the Appleton School System, and two Lincoln teachers, Marie Frank and Christine Holtbeck.

Tank, artillery battles mark war's 10th day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt claimed its tanks consolidated new positions in the Sinai Desert today after beating back an Israeli counteroffensive. Israel said the Egyptians again tried to push forward in the desert's northern reaches but were stopped short.

The Egyptians said they advanced farther into the Israeli-occupied Sinai peninsula in a tank battle Sunday that cost the Israelis 150 tanks and 29 warplanes.

But the Israelis said they relinquished no ground in the seven hours of desert fighting and claimed the attacking Egyptians lost more than 200 tanks and 15 planes.

"The pattern of today's fighting has become localized clashes in various sectors," the Egyptian statement said.

On the Syrian front, Damascus reported heavy tank, infantry and artillery battles raged as the fourth Arab-Israeli war ground into its 10th day.

Syrian shelling was slowing the Israeli advance toward Damascus and the Israeli tanks were reported about 21 miles from the ancient Syrian capital. Correspondents with the Israeli forces reported that long-range Syrian guns opened up whenever the armored columns tried to advance.

The Israeli military command also reported another naval exploit. It said its naval patrol boats sank 14 "armed fishing type" boats in harbor of Ras Gharib, on the Gulf of Suez during the night. Israel said the harbor, 20 miles across the gulf from Israeli forces on the Sinai peninsula, was an Egyptian commando base.

Otherwise, the Israeli command said, it was a quiet night on both the Syrian and Egyptian fronts.

The Egyptian military command said the fighting Sunday along the 102-mile Sinai front "raged with utmost violence and savagry." Egypt said its forces made territorial gains all along the line.

But in Tel Aviv, the Israeli command claimed Egyptian armored units failed to penetrate the Israeli defense line which it said was still about 2½ miles inland from the Suez Canal. Associated Press correspondent Paul Kohn reported from the front that he saw no evidence that the Israelis gave up ground.

Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said in a televised speech Sunday night that the "serious, decisive battle" with Egypt was yet to come.

"This is not like previous wars. It is a war of many days and much blood," he said. "The important question is not a cease-fire. It is how much equipment the enemy will have left when we have finished the war. What we would like is for the Arabs to hurt so badly that they cannot think of war."

The Israeli command announced Sunday that Israel had lost 656 soldiers in the first eight days of fighting; the state radio gave an unofficial figure of 2,000 wounded. An Egyptian spokesman claimed in Cairo that Israeli casualties were much higher. Neither

'Hazards' to be listed by Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew addresses a television audience tonight and sources indicated the farewell speech may be an instruction on avoiding the problems that ruined his political career.

The approximately 15-minute speech is to be televised live at 6:30 p.m. CDT by NBC and CBS.

Agnew resigned Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a federal charge of income tax evasion.

He spent much of the weekend working on the speech, without the help of the speechwriters he used as vice president.

Sources close to the former vice president said the speech would be "largely his own work."

"There won't be any whining and complaining and I don't expect him to be terribly defensive about it," said one associate. "But I think he will state his case firmly."

After leaving the U.S. courthouse in Baltimore Wednesday where he was given a $10,000 fine and three years' probation on the tax charge, Agnew promised he would make the speech.

The government has agreed not to prosecute on the additional charges, but indications are that Agnew will elaborate on his denial.

Hearing begins for Armstrong

Armstrong, 27, pleaded guilty two weeks ago to bombing the Army Mathematics Research Center at the University of Wisconsin Aug. 24, 1970, as an antiwar act. A UW physics researcher died in the explosion. He was not working on a military project.

The hearing was described by New York attorney William Kunstler as "unique and historic" because of the defenses' opportunity to present a case for the illegality of the war in Southeast Asia in an American courtroom.

"In order to show you the motivation of Karl Armstrong we have to show you the history of the times out of which his act grew," Kunstler told Judge William Sachtjen.

"We have to deal with the war in Southeast Asia and the history of the war as it affected him."

Kunstler said the former soldiers would be followed to the witness stand by antiwar activists, scholars, newsmen, scientists and one former U.S. senator, Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

Kunstler likened the hearing to the ones that Clarence Darrow won in the Leopold and Loeb trial in Chicago, in which Darrow brought fourth the motivation of two young men who kidnapped and killed a youth from a wealthy Chicago family.

While Armstrong accepts the legal responsibility for his act, Kunstler said, he hoped that the moral responsibility would fall elsewhere—on the men who conducted the war in Vietnam and the American people.

The first witness was Charles Piper, 26, of Madison, who said he served in the Judge Advocate's Office of the 1st Marine Division in Vietnam.

Piper testified that Marines who were accused of killing Vietnamese civilians were usually acquitted or received minimal sentences upon conviction.

Armstrong said he "acted out of the highest motivations" in the Sterling Hall bombing and was merely trying to focus attention on the immorality of the Vietnam war.

"For me it took a tremendous amount of courage I did not think I had," he said. "Overnight I was turned into an outlaw by the government and labeled as a criminal."

"When I heard that Fassnacht was killed it was really a crushing moment," he said in an interview with the Wisconsin State Journal published Sunday. "I think I was more shocked than anyone else."

Asked if he felt he was "taking the rap" for the entire antiwar movement, Armstrong replied: "I don't know how to answer that question. I don't see myself as in any sort of martyr role."

The State Journal interviewed Armstrong during visiting time Saturday at the Dane County Jail after Circuit Court Judge W.L. Jackman denied a request that county officials be ordered to allow an interview.

Armstrong, who was arrested in Toronto, Canada in February, 1972, said his whereabouts was given to authorities by a person he had provided with money while he was a fugitive.

"It was a person I had given a fairly large sum of money to," Armstrong said. "He was into the drug scene and I thought he was trying to get out."

LBJ phone tapped, Douglas says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said today that former President Lyndon B. Johnson thought his White House phone was tapped.

Douglas also said he believes the Supreme Court's ultraconfidential conference, at which the justices discuss pending cases, had been bugged.

Douglas also asserted that the Supreme Court's ultra-confidential conference was bugged.

Douglas' assertions came in a dissent to what would normally have been a routine action denying bail to a criminal defendant.

"We who live in the District of Columbia know that electronic surveillance is commonplace," wrote Douglas. "I am indeed morally certain that the conference room of this court has been 'bugged'; and President Johnson during his term in the White House asserted to me that even his phone was tapped."

Douglas offered no substantiation for either claim.

The application for bailing pending appeal to the Supreme Court was filed by Margaret Anne Heutsche, who was found in contempt for failure to answer questions before a federal grand jury in Chicago that was probing break-ins into draft boards in Evanston, Ill.

The application went to Justice William H. Rehnquist who denied it. Douglas dissented.

The defendant claimed that the subpoena and the questions asked her before the grand jury were the product of illegal electronics surveillance and that the government had not properly affirmed or denied that claim as required by federal law.

The government claimed it had not eavesdropped on any of the defendant's telephone conversation but refused to say whether or not her lawyer had been overheard.

"We are told that in this case the applicant's lawyers did discuss her case with persons other than herself over the telephone," Douglas wrote. "Is Big Brother to have a ringside seat where he can listen to all the confidences of lawyers who defend an accused?" Douglas asked.

Lower courts had refused Miss Heutsche's attempts to require the government to check its records to determine whether or not her lawyers phones had been taped.

"The victims of illegal governmental surveillance are thus apparently faced with the insurmountable task of proving such surveillance before the government will be asked to respond to allegations of its existence or pticipate in an evidentiary hearing to decide the matter," Douglas said.

Widespread blaze

Flames and smoke billow from a densely packed section of homes and businesses Sunday in Chelsea, Mass. The general alarm fire was fed by high winds. (AP Wirephoto)

1,100 homeless after fire

Five firemen injured fighting the blaze were hospitalized. No deaths were reported.

About 500 National Guardmen roped off the desolate, charred expanse of the oldest section of the city, which was destroyed Sunday when a raging fire devoured dozens of crumbling buildings.

The homeless, most of them Spanish-speaking, blacks and elderly Jews, sought shelter with relatives and in a makeshift dormitory thrown set up in an armory.

"I have lost everything!" said Henry Wogciechowski, 49. "It's a crying shame. All the people who live in the stricken area are poor people. Just look at all these people standing around crying! They have no place to go from here."

At the height of the blaze, which officials said apparently started in an abandoned rag storage building, 3,000 to 4,000 persons were evacuated from their homes.

Sparks leaped from building to building as gusts up to 50 miles an hour swept across Boston Harbor.

"This is a conflagration of epic proportions," said Fire Chief Herbert C. Fothergill. "A conflagration such as this one creates its own winds of hurricane force."

The fire cut a path a half mile wide through the decaying industrial section of the community of 32,000, two miles north of downtown Boston. Many of the industries were small businesses that reclaimed scrap metal, rags and tires. Much of the area had been scheduled for demolition through urban renewal.

Fothergill described the fire as a "a huge tenement ... Our buildings are almost all of the wooden two-and three-decker type."

The national Board of Fire Underwriters in February said the city had "the highest potential for conflagration of any city in the United States." The board cited the city's role as storage area for 138 million gallons of oil, gasoline and other flammable fluids, all above ground.

About half of the 20-block area was leveled. The rest was a jumble of stark building skeletons and smoldering utility poles.

The fire, which broke out about 4 p.m., was contained at a railroad right of way about five hours later. But it continued to burn today. Policemen with dogs roamed the area to guard against looters.

A huge plume of black smoke, visible 40 miles away, attracted thousands of Sunday afternoon sightseers, who slowed fire apparatus rushing in the scene from as far as 100 miles away.

Firemen doused buildings in the path of the wind-pushed blaze, but gave up on them as soon as they ignited.

"One minute you'd see a shop on fire. Then the next thing you knew, four or five tenements were gone," said one witness. "It was incredible."

Gov. Francis W. Sargent declared the city a disaster area, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said he would ask the federal government to do the same.

Mayor Philip Spellman said he hoped most of the evacuees could be returned to their homes by Tuesday. He said he is still working on finding housing for the homeless.

Matthew S. Belowski, 60, whose home was destroyed, said he and his wife Winifred were lucky to get out when they did.

"Mine was one of the first homes to go," he said. "Winifred and I were just sitting down to Sunday dinner when the sparks got the outside of the house going."

"Someone — I don't know who it was — banged on my front door and said our house was on fire. My wife, our dog and I got out, but I had to leave behind my parrot, three hens, my aquarium and all the money I had."

Thai leader leaves as peace move

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The former military premier of Thailand, his son and the deputy premier, left Thailand today in a move to restore peace to the violence-torn capital, the government radio said.

The three Army leaders — former Premier Thanom Kittikachorn, Deputy Premier Praphas Charusathien and Col. Narong Kittikachorn — were the focus of street clashes between foes of the country's government and the regime's troops and police for the past two days.

Praphas was considered the most powerful man in the ruling group. Narong, Thanom's son, is the deputy chief of national security.

Thousands of flag-waving demonstrators had demanded the execution of the three leaders.

Thailand's new civilian premier appealed again today for an end to bloodshed as student bands attacked police stations, looted and burned government buildings.

Student representatives, who reportedly met with new Premier Sanya Thammasak, relayed his appeal for order to demonstrators in the square around Democracy Monument, the center of the week-long antigovernment demonstrations which erupted into violence Sunday in this capital city.

Sanya did not immediately confirm the departure of the three military leaders and the demonstrators were skeptical.

Radio Thailand, the government radio, said Sanya reported that the new government had reached an understanding with the students, but it did not elaborate.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej named Sanya, rector of Thammasat University, to replace Thanom Sunday. But throngs of demonstrator confronted the army's troops and tanks today, and sporadic shooting sent a steady stream of casualties to already crowded hospitals.

Securities case to get high review

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a lower court decision in a securities industry case that could sharply affect the future of suits on consumer and environmental protection.

The dispute turns on questions in federal court management of class action suits, legal actions in which someone brings litigation for himself, and also for all others who are similarly affected.

The case was brought to the Supreme Court by Morton Eisen for himself and all others who purchased stock on the New York Stock Exchange in less than 100-share lots during 1962-1966.

Eisen wanted to recover the extra commission the so-called "odd-lot purchaser" has to pay for trading in less than 100 shares. He launched a $120 million class action suit against odd-lot brokers and the stock exchange.

Earlier this year, a three-judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court at New York declared the case unmanageable as a class action, and then went on set up what critics have called all but insurmountable roadblocks to certain other class actions.

The full circuit court voted five to three against rehearing the case with the majority declaring that the Supreme Court should resolve the issue as quickly as possible.

Two key provisions of the circuit panel ruling, written by Judge Harold R. Medina, required notification, at Eisen's expense, of the 2.5 million oddlot purchasers in the class, and called the so-called fluid recovery doctrine illegal.

Under the doctrine, if those who actually paid the extra commission cannot be located, the money damages could be passd on to others in a similar position such as future odd-lot purchasers.

The trial judge in the case had originally okayed a method of notification that would have involved about 7,000 persons.

Circuit Court James L. Oakes, in dissenting from the refusal to rehear the case, echoed the fears of class action proponents.

"The panel opinion seems on its face to give a green light to monopolies and conglomerates who deal in quantity items selling at small prices to proceed to violate antitrust laws, unhampered by any realistic threat of private consumer civil proceedings ..." Oakes said.

Bargaining averts Waupaca strike at last minute

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent staff writer

WAUPACA — The strike of teachers in the Waupaca Unified School District, set for 6 a.m. today, was called off at 5:55 a.m. when a tentative agreement was reached by negotiating teams after 24 hours of marathon weekend bargaining.

Ninety-eight teachers and 2,000 students were in their classrooms at the regular time today.

The teachers, in an early morning meeting of the Waupaca Teachers Association, voted unanimously to accept the tentative terms reached. Brig Konecke, Raymond Farrell and Roger Nelson brought the terms to the group at 5:20 a.m. today. Most of the association members had kept a nightlong vigil, awaiting word on the strike.

"I am glad it's over," said a bone tired Konecke, as he explained to The Post-Crescent what the teachers had gained.

"I hope Waupaca never has to go through a thing like this again," he added. "It was a long, drawn-out affair, filled with frustrations, anxiety and some bitter feelings. The teachers are satisfied and now we can get back to teaching school."

Sharing the elation that the 1973-74 contract terms are set and assured that the board of education will accept them, Everett Anderson, president of the school board and member of the bargaining team, said, "I am certain that the teachers feel they had a complete victory. They did obtain clauses in the new contract which they feel will give them more security. By the same token, the board has retained management control.

"I am happy that a strike was averted and hope, now, that the wounds will heal quickly and we can go forward together to achieve the goals we have set for this year."

Neither John Gusmer, chairman of the board bargaining committee, and third bargainer, Mrs. Betty Spiegler, could be reached for comment.

Tentative agreements reached, subject to final approval by the board of education and the WTA when terms are clearly written, include:

—An average 6 per cent increase for teachers on the salary schedule;

— The base pay for a holder of a bachelor of arts degree is $7,475, and the base pay for holders of the master of arts degree is $8,075. The present base for BA holders is $7,250; present base for MAs is $7,850;

—The teachers at the top of the pay schedule were granted a $125 longevity increase (increase for teachers locked into salary schedule and who can only be paid increased salary by obtaining additional educational credits and moving to a new lane on the salary schedule);

—The board of education will pay the full 5 per cent teacher retirement pay beginning Jan. 1, 1974 (the board now pays the full 4 1/2 per cent contribution).

The dollar amount of the package in the contract was not released today by the board of education. The figure falls in the range of $63,000 to $69,000, according to a hasty calculation made at the close of the bargaining session today. "The total package corresponds with the amount we had set in our appeal to the Department of Public Instruction," Anderson said. "Our proposed budget for 1973-74 exceeds the limit set by Gov. Patrick Lucey and the board has made its appeal for more money. This is warranted by the additional expense the district will experience with the opening of the new high school and expansion of our educational system for all grades."

Gains for the teachers in the tentative agreement include several new, nonmonetary items:

—A grievance procedure, the right to grieve, or bring to the table, any infractions of the contract with binding arbitration;

— Fair dismissal, a procedure to be used by the board when it feels it has good cause to dismiss a teacher, and this includes notification, preparation of evidence and the right of the teacher to be heard;

— Longterm disability insurance, which provides that a teacher disabled beyond three months will receive disability payments.

The board's new provisions include a simple no-strike clause, a discipline clause and a zipper clause, which provides that the signed master contract cannot be reopened for negotiations for one year.

The board moved from its initial position when bargaining began last February and dropped its merit pay proposal, its power to withhold increment increases from teachers not doing a good job and its bid for an arbitrary transfer clause, which would have permitted it to place teachers in

Calumet's budget at $2.8 million

CHILTON — The proposed 1974 Calumet County budget calls for expenditures of $2,812,820, an increase of $365,515 over estimated spending for 1973. A hearing on the proposed budget will be at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 31.

The expenditures would require a tax levy of $1,268,395, calling for a tax rate of $4.45 per $1,000 equalized evaluation. That rate is 14 cents more than the $4.31 required by the 1973 budget.

The biggest increase in the budget was in the charities and corrections cartegory, which is set at $1,060,690, an increase of $142,807. Social service administration shows an increase of $115,000, or some 330 per cent. But, according to County Clerk Donald Schwobe, this is partly due to new accounting procedures which require that all expenses, not just those covered by county payments, be included in the budget. At the same time, amounts for this category to be received from state and federal sources have been included in the revenue listings. Aid to dependent children also took a rise of some $30,000; Calumet Homestead costs increased about $95,000 due to increases in labor wages and operation.

Other increases are General Government, $354,325 up $63,712; protection of persons and property, $240,275, up $36,996; the sheriff's budget increased $25,000 due to increased help and county paying the juvenile officers a salary which state aids had been paying

Health, $79,005, up $16,413; education and recreation, $296,255, up $33,489, including appropriation of monies for the county library planning committee, historical societies and snowmobile trails;

Conservation and development $54,500, up $2,800, and county highways $578,930, up $80,642. Other expenses were listed at $148,790, up $53,048, plus the $51,460 police radio outlay for a new communications department. This is partially state funded and the revenues offset this.

Revenues expected to be received total $1,551,433, up $243,126.

24-hour police protection sought

CHILTON — An informational meeting concerning the request of several Calumet County cities for 24-hour police protection will be held at the court house assembly room at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The meeting will be chaired by Carl Wilberscheid, who heads the committee on protection of persons and property. A special letter of notice of the meeting was sent to all town chairmen, village presidents and city. Wilberscheid noted that the meeting is open to anyone who is interested.

Watershed study plans on review

About 70 representatives of organizations, planning agencies and industry have been invited to attend a joint state Department of Natural Resources Great Lakes Basin Commission meeting Tuesday morning when initial plans for the second of a three-phase Fox-Wolf watershed analysis will be reviewed.

The meeting is not open to the public, but only to a group recommended by the East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. Organizations, such as the American Association of University Women, the Sierra Club and the League fof Women Voters have been invited.

Dr. Rahim Oghalai, water resources planner for the DNR division of environmental protection, said the second phase study will involve $1.86 million in federal funds and $100,000 in state money. If federal money is approved by Congress and the President, the study could start in about a year.

The three-year study, called a Level B study, will be more detailed than the initial study, from which 23 appendices on resources in the Great Lakes area have been prepared and will be released soon.

A third phase study also is anticipated, but that "is a long way off," said Oghalai.

The Fox-Wolf area includes the Upper and Lower Fox and the Wolf rivers and their vicinities.

The meeting Tuesday will be in the community room of The First National Bank of Appleton

First-year budgeting of snowmobile plan Ok'd by Calumet committee

CHILTON — The Calumet County Planning and Zoning committee approved the budgeting of $27,000 for the first year of the County Snowmobile plan at its regular committee meeting last week.

Estimated revenue from the state is expected to be $15,600 with actual cost to the county for the first year $12,000.

About 2 1/2 miles of trails will be proposed for the first year through Calumet County Park and two miles through the Brillion Marsh. Rest areas, maintenance of trails and purchase of equipment are estimated in the first year's project.

A resolution authorizing the application for state funding, plus a resolution spelling out various county committee responsibilities with the adoption of the snowmobile plan, is expected to be presented at the November meeting.

The budget request will be presented to the Finance committee for its approval and the entire county budget will be heard on Oct. 31 at the County Board Session.

The Calumet Sno-Riders Club, along with the St. Ann Sno-Riders and Woodstone Gliders Club of New Holstein, have been working with the county committee in implementing a snowmobile plan for the past year.

Application for funds to implement the plan must now be made to the State Department of Natural Resources.

In other action, Roland Tonn, county planner, noted several revisions in his preliminary comprehensive plan report for the county. The report is the last of six reports dealing with the entire county. Tonn said after the committee has fully studied the plan, which it has had for several months, a public hearing should be held with final approval of the plan by the county board at a future date.

The plan is a summary of background reports of recommended goals and policies, land use plan, transportation plan, community facilities plan and a sewer and water facilties plan for both municipalities and rural areas.

Tonn said he thought the best way to handle the hearing on the plan would be to reach all civic groups and other organizations in the county, explain the plan and make every effort to get as many details of the plan to the people before hearings can be scheduled throughout the county

Clarence Pagel, chairman, told the committee members to make every effort to conclude their study of the plan by the next committee meeting so that discussion regarding changes can be made before hearings are scheduled.

Authorization also was given to purchase a set of aerial maps of the county for a cost of $90. These maps, it was reported, could also be used by the treasurer's department for tax listing purposes.

The committee will request the East Central Planning Commission to make a Flood Hazard Study program as part of its planning program. Tonn explained there has been an increase in the requests for this type of mapping, which could be a costly item for an individual county to undertake. The maps would identify the floodplain areas in the various counties. If the East Central Planning Commission does not make the study, then the county will have to budget for this work.

The Gospel according to Boone

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent staff writer

It may have been "A New Song" that Pat Boone was singing Sunday, but to most of the people in the audience it must have seemed as if time had stood still.

Despite the many years that have passed since "Love Letters in the Sand" and "April Love" hit the top of the charts, the man who made them popular had seemingly not aged one year.

The clothes were right in the height of mod fashion and the white shoes, which had been Boone's trademark, had platform heels, but everything else was the same. And no one was disappointed for apparently the mellow tones and the friendly, informality of the man were what they had come to hear.

Boone and his troupe of entertainers had come to Appleton from Hollywood to give two performances as part of Applefest. The shows were sponsored by the Fox Valley Key 73 organization, a group consisting of a number of denominations interested in bringing the gospel to as many people as possible through various endeavors.

The show Sunday probably was one of the major attractions Key 73 has had and while it had no preaching in it, it could be called a sermon in song for many of the numbers were gospel-oriented. The rest was good solid family entertainment.

It started out the way this kind of a show should, with Boone himself. There was no warm-up and none was needed for the people had come to hear the singer and that was what they got immediately.

To establish immediate rapport, Boone went into the audience to shake hands — all the way to the back row and then into the

Beautification project considered for award

MADISON — A Waupaca County highway beautification project on State 10 has been named as one of 16 highway projects in Wisconsin to be nominated for consideration in the sixth annual "Highways and the Environment" award competition of the United States Department of Transportation.

Wisconsin entries have won awards for 10 projects since the program was started in 1969.

The Waupaca County beautification submitted was a landscape screening an auto salvage operation between Fremont and Weyauwega. Raymond Moe, Waupaca County highway commissioner, said an estimated 1,000 trees were planted in the federally funded landscape operation which cost an estimated $10,000 to $11,000.

Many of the trees died and were replanted, he said. The effort to screen the salvage yard was instituted at the suggestion of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson during Johnson's term as President.

Harold Fiedler, Madison, state highway engineer, said the project was carried out in 1966 and 1967 and involved planting of a variety of trees and shrubs near the intersection of State 49 and State 10.

bleachers on both sides of the Appleton High School-East auditorium.

The entertainer even managed to get in a plug for Applefest — via the Garden of Eden story — assuring everyone that the apple Appleton was honoring was not really the fruit of sin at all, but a nice, healthy nutrient.

After that, he was on easy street with the audience, which included many who hadn't even been born when Boone was at his height. That apparently didn't matter to the young, who clapped and sang with the singer when asked and even seemed to enjoy the "oldies but goodies," such as "Tutti Frutti" and "When I Lost My Baby."

He was more than ably assisted by The McCrary, a gospel singing group of brothers and sisters, who belted out the songs as if they had been singing them all their lives.

They not only added a nice balance to the mellow tones of Boone, but brought in rousing numbers that all but brought the audience out of their seats on a number of occasions.

The clapping got so loud at times to such gospel tunes as, "You Got a Friend" and "Come Together," that the words were completely lost.

To round out the program, Boone had brought with him a young comedian, Greg Shideler, whose highly animated presentations, from kittens purring to jets and explosions, all with his voice, brought a lengthy round of applause, and set the stage for Boone's finale.

The last part of the program quieted the audience as they tried to catch every word of Boone's story of how religion had helped him adjust his own life and his career.

And when they had listened and applauded and settled down, Boone brought back The McCrary and ended it with "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man from Galilee," which must have made this the swingingest revival meeting Appleton ever had.

Marinette scored first on a short pass when two Clintonville defenders slipped and fell in the mud while the receiver went by them for a 60-yard touchdown.

Trucker Mike Jirschele scored just before the half on an 85-yard quarterback sneak and then kicked the extra point to provide the winning margin. In the rest of the game Marinette stopped the Truckers despite aggressive running up the middle by Dave Ruch and Greg Husman

The Trucker defense did well with Husman and Ruch leading the way with eight and seven tackles respectively. Others who performed well on defense were Scott Erdmann, Dick Anderson and Jirschele with six tackles each. Randy Higgins, five, and Greg Korth and Gred Danke also did well on defense, McLeod reported.

McLeod said, "The team and coaches thank all the fans who have supported us at our home games."

Clintonville boys place in PPK competition

CLINTONVILLE — Colny Gretzinger placed third in the 12-year-old age group and Jay Roloff, fifth in the 9-year-old age group, at the district Punt, Pass and Kick (PPK) competition Saturday at Milwaukee.

Both boys previously were first place winners in the local and the zone competition. Only first place winners advance, and the district winners will go to area competition.

Response to classes low; most canceled

AMHERST — Of the 13 adult evening classes offered here, just two will be held. Insufficient response canceled the other 11.

To conduct a class, the school must receive at least 10 applicants. High school principal Richard Martzke, who is in charge of the classes, said that only women's physical education and crocheting and knitting classes received the necessary number of applicants.

The physical education class, taught by Sue Hale of the high school faculty, meets on Monday nights. Crocheting and knitting, instructed by Mrs. Eugene Huettner, meets Tuesdays. Both classes start at 7 p.m.

Martzke said many people felt 7 p.m. was a bad time for classes.

THE Post-Crescent

Gerald Ford for Vice President

Rep. Gerald Ford as Vice President should do much to restore faith in the integrity of the presidency and he could do much for President Nixon in reestablishing a working relationship with the Congress.

Ford has said that he doesn't believe there is anything in his background which would disqualify him for the office, and Congress is promising an intensive probe into that background, and this is all well. It still is difficult to understand how Spiro Agnew got away with all he did for so many years without any hint reaching public ears.

In this case President Nixon has accepted the advice of others in selecting a chief assistant and has come up with a selection everyone can endorse.

Regarding his relations with Congress, they have reached such a low ebb that Nixon's last three years promised nothing more than a stalemated government. His continual vetoes of Congressional actions, his impoundment of funds authorized by Congress, and on the other hand, the practical ignoring of most of his legislative proposals by the Congress, all had led to a complete breakdown in relations which even Melvin Laird could not mend. A team of Ford and Laird could help.

Most Americans at this point would like to forget Agnew and Watergate and get on with some constructive measures to help our badly ailing economy and tackle some of the other serious long-range problems which confront this country.

Stay out of the war

The State Department has totally rejected Arab charges that American warplanes have been involved in flights over Egypt and Syria. We certainly would like to believe the State Department but we are haunted by memories of the bombing in Cambodia which was covered up by both the State and Defense Departments for years.

The State Department does say, however, that we are about to re-supply Israel with military equipment lost in the first days of the new Middle Eastern War. And to that extent we are involved already in the fighting, just as is Russia as the chief military supplier of the Arabian forces.

The entry of Jordan into the war forecasts a long, difficult struggle. King Hussein saw most of his army destroyed the last time and was most reluctant to commit his forces this time. He must now figure Arabian chances for victory as much better than in the 1967 war.

It becomes obvious that the Arabs were much better prepared this time, and while the Israelis are fighting as determinedly and as intelligently as before, it must be remembered that they are confronted on two fronts with tremendously superior forces. The longer the war endures the worse it is for the Israelis.

And the worse it is for the Israelis the greater the pressure on the United States to become more actively involved. We would prefer not to be involved at all. Certainly our involvement should be limited to the role of a supplier of military hardware.

Is the President above the law?

President Nixon has argued that turning over the White House tapes will destroy the confidentiality of his office. He has implied —and others have said —that the President of the United States is above laws that apply to the rest of the citizenry. His former aide, John Erlichman, testified that he believed the President of the United States could break just about any law at all in the name of national security.

Before his resignation, former Vice President Spiro Agnew argued that impeachment must precede indictment in the case of the Vice President, too. His change of mind may have been due to conviction by his advisers that this would not hold up or get the advantageous deal that was worked out in plea bargaining with the Justice Department.

But if the executive office of President —and perhaps the Vice President —are completely aloof from the restrictions and responsibilities of other Americans, does it work in reverse?

It has been part of the credo of the American way as borrowed from old English common law that a man is presumed innocent until proven guilty. Perhaps that doesn't apply when the individual is President of the United States.

At the very least President Nixon surrounded himself with some very questionable characters. His Vice President has been charged and convicted of a felony and suspected of others. Two of his former Cabinet members are under indictment. Plans were made by persons employed in the White House for at least three incidents of illegal entry. Charges have been made of tampering with federal agencies such as the Internal Revenue Service, the Securities and Exchange Commission and even the Department of State, for a price. There was a large assortment of dirty tricks and repressive measures were approved at least in theory by some of Mr. Nixon's friends and aides.

While Mr. Agnew lined his pockets at the public expense, Mr. Nixon's friends were seeking to destroy or at least seriously hamper the very structure of our democratic process of elections and governing. Even if not specifically guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, nowhere defined in the Constitution, should he remain in office?

Some years ago when homosexuality still raised eyebrows, it was argued that it was not overly oppressive to deny government employment in sensitive areas to homosexuals because they were obvious targets for blackmail. Without declaring Mr. Nixon necessarily guilty of or even aware of everything nasty and illegal charged to his regime, the question may well be raised whether he should remain any longer in the Oval Office.

Conservative columnist Kevin Phillips writes that the United States is becoming a giant Banana Republic. Instead, it seems that the stability of our government, our system, our people, will insure that we won't topple. We'll muddle through and last out the three years remaining of Mr. Nixon's second term. We may even get a wholesome dose of humility when we learn that our world leadership isn't all that essential after all.

But future constitutional scholars should spend the time studying ways of extricating us in the future from such a brackish bog. The President of the United States has something in common with Caesar's wife. He should be above suspicion.

Delegation of power angers lawmakers

MADISON —As American humorists have so often reminded, it is not easy for a legislature to appear graceful and consistent, given the vagaries of human nature and the impulsiveness of the electorate. But the Wisconsin Legislature never appears quite as absurd as when it periodically huffs and puffs about the invasion of its constitutional powers by what is always described as the arrogant and irresponsible professional bureaucracy.

The state Assembly indulged itself again the other day, and spent a morning of bluster and expressions of injured vanity because, as some of its angry orators put it, the state agencies in their rule-making zeal are preempting the rightful function of representatives and senators.

The issue was the composition of the legislative committee for the review of administrative rules, and whether there should be equal representation of the houses within that group, that under present law acts as overseer of the departments. It can veto their orders when it concludes that the non-elected officers are unreasonable —or when they manage to offend important pressure groups that promptly bring their grievances to the elected lawmakers.

Not easy to follow

It is perhaps redundant to remark that it was not easy to follow the progress of the discussion and the maneuvering.

But at one point the colloquy appeared to concentrate on the question of the legal authority of the legislature to repeal a decree by a creature agency. A gallery listener had to conclude that if there is any serious doubt about that power, matters have come to an unfortunate pass, indeed. But the dispute moved on and the point appeared to be dropped.

There should be no doubt whatever that the legislature is the basic constitutional legislative agency. To the extent that non-elected and perhaps not always responsive bureaucrats have taken on such powers over many decades, the legislature has surrendered it.

The fact of default may not be pleasant for the purists and the literal-minded living under what is defined as representative government. But it ought not to be surprising, least of all to the legislators. For they and their predecessors have given up their lawmaking powers and delegated them to subordinate agencies over many decades at an accelerating pace.

What the legislature has given away it can recover. But it won't. Indeed, the legislature now sitting, for all of the indignation recurrently expressed about the greedy and arrogant bureaucracy —as the elected politician typically describes it —will before it adjourns surrender more of its authority because in its collective judgment it can be best exercised elsewhere.

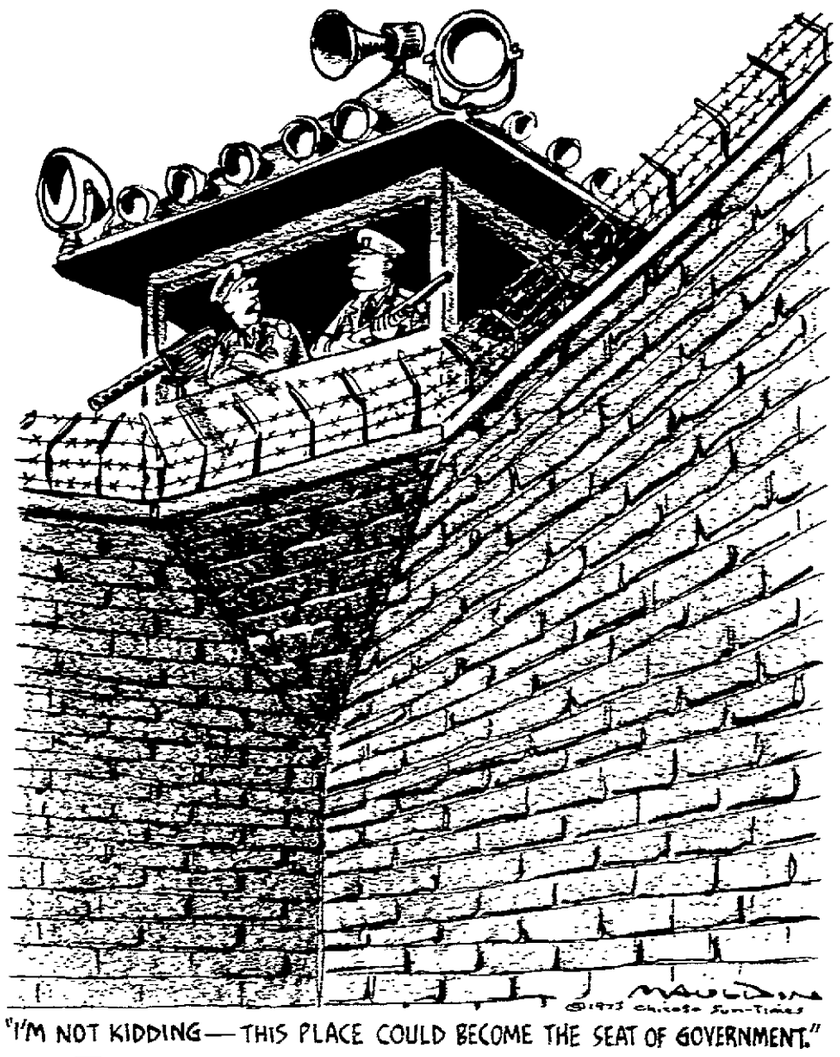
Power must be delegated

Modern government has become so complex and the day to day issues with which it deals are often so technical that dozens of legislatures stretching over more than half a century have agreed that many powers must be delegated.

Even as some members of the Assembly were thundering the other day, the mails brought little piles of notices about proposed orders of a dozen or more administrative agencies, on dozens of technical public regulation issues, illustrating the phenomenon of administrative lawmaking.

They came from the Department of Agriculture, which is considering changes in rules governing home improvement and building trade practices and from the Hearing Aid Dealers and Fitting Examining Board, which said it is withdrawing some rules it had advanced earlier, and from the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations, which is worried about the adequacy of rules governing the quality of elevators used by firemen and others in emergencies, and the Medical Examining Board, which wants to change rules dealing with admission of foreign physicians to practice here.

These officers did not usurp power. It was delegated to them by elected politicians who could not deal with these and a thousand other matters.



"I'M NOT KIDDING— THIS PLACE COULD BECOME THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT."

There are limits to Russian detente

The new outburst of fighting in the Near East shows the limits of detente between the Big Two. The Russians are willing to cooperate with this country only on an opportunistic basis.

As soon as chances for gain present themselves, Moscow turns a deafish ear to Washington. So this country is justified in holding the Russians to stiff conditions as a price for detente.

To gauge the Russian attitude, it is useful to compare what happened this time with what happened during the six-day war. When tension began to rise then, the Russians actively sought to make matters worse. One Soviet diplomat even egged on the Egyptians to attack the Israelis by falsely spreading the word that the Israelis were about to jump Syria.

Sixth fleet threat

In the thick of the fighting, the Russians threatened to intervene against Israel with missiles. Only when President Johnson pointed the Sixth Fleet in the direction of the fighting area did the Russians stand down.

This time when the build-up started, the Russians pulled out advisers—and not only from Egypt where they had previously been rebuffed by President Anwar Sadat, but also from Syria where there is a radical regime not unfriendly to the Soviets. As soon as the fighting was underway, moreover, President Nixon and Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev exchanged diplomatic communications.

One fruit of that exchange emerged in the debate at the United Nations Security Council. While stating their views freely on the Near East, Russia and the United States did not slam each other. The reason for this accommodation was plain. The Russians believed that the Arabs were going to lose the war, and they did not want to be connected with the defeat.

But as soon as that perspective shifted, Soviet behavior changed. The Russians began urging Arab regimes from Algeria through Iraq to join the fray with results that are now obvious. At the same time, the Russians did not scruple to pour in by air military replacements to Egypt and Syria.

What this behavior shows is that the elements already involved in detente are not enough to restrain the Soviet Union. No doubt General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev would like to develop his country economically with help from the United States in farm produce and technical know-how. Probably he would also like to pare military budgets by arms control agreements putting a lid on the most expensive weapons. But these prospects are not sweet enough or important enough to deter the Soviet leadership from rash actions certain to jeopardize Big Two cooperation and peace in the world.

Jackson's amendment

In these circumstances, the United States needs to hold the Soviet Union more strictly to account. One way to do that lies in the amendment offered by Sen. Henry Jackson to the administration's proposal for granting Russia nondiscriminatory trading terms (or most favored nation treaty). The Jackson amendment provides that "most favored nation" treatment, and economic credits, can be granted only if the Soviet Union makes progress in freeing up internal emigration.

For some time it was difficult to organize a position on the Jackson amendment. The President argued that adding conditions to the deal he had cut with the Russians would put his word in doubt, threaten detente and cause a reversion to the cold war.

But part of that argument is bogus. The Congress has always insisted on playing a major role in trade agreements. Back in 1911 the Congress passed a resolution condemning Russia for harsh treatment of the Jews. The next year, in pursuit of that resolution, President William Howard Taft actually abrogated an ongoing trade treaty with Czarist Russia.

In 1962, President Kennedy wanted to broaden trade rules so that "most favored nation" status could be extended to several East European countries besides Yugoslavia and Poland. The Congress, instead, passed a bill which eliminated Yugoslavia and Poland from "most favored nation" status.

So the President had no right in the first place to make with Russia a binding deal involving trade. Now, on top of the tradition, comes the evidence of the irresponsible way the Russians interpret detente.

Accordingly, there can be little doubt about the appropriate American reaction. The Russians are not offering this country the kind of restraint that justifies important economic concessions. Washington ought to raise the price of the detente. The way to do that is to acknowledge our deepest humanitarian standards. It is to go at least part way with Sen. Jackson in insisting that Russia progressively humanize its regime.

More comments on morality in Bible

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Readers who took time to check the chapters and verses Mr. Nordlander had pointed out in the letter he had written in regards to the Bible, know those verses cannot be read without leaving the blush of shame. In answer to that letter, Rev. Brandt says, "They were written for our learning. Making us wise unto salvation. Those passages show us just what sin in man's heart makes man do, and they show us how God feels about and deals with that sin." Perhaps it should be said that everyone who reads the scriptures must learn how to extract honey out of them so our souls will not be stained and soiled.

Take time to read Numbers 31 in the scriptures and ask yourself if it was written for the purpose of enforcing moral truth, making us wise unto salvation.

God, the father of us all, commands Moses to order his chosen people to destroy all Midian men; babies in their mother's arms — but — preserve the unwed young women for the priests and soldiers. Why were the young women not killed? Why were they spared? God certainly raised the black flag when he ordered massacre and ordered young women to be carried off simply to satisfy the sexual desire of men. Teaching man to be unclean is unholy.

If God is the author of the Bible, is it possible that a being of purity — the author of modesty, would smear or stain the pages of his book with such immoral stories? How can we be expected to keep these words in mind, "The inspired volume is clean. It is the very foundation of modesty and morality and is the standard by which all other books should be measured."?

Dredging of Fox River progresses

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Oct. 18, 1873.

The work of dredging out Fox River in the rapids above the Grand Chute dam is progressing satisfactorily, and the shallow water for navigation below Caldwell's Island will soon be a tradition of the past.

We had supposed, along with others, that dredging would be impossible because of the rocks, but the experiment has proved a success and six feet of water in low water periods will reward the labors of the government engineers.

The dredging of the lower lock, near Richmond's Paper Mill, is also a complete success. This has always been a bad point for navigation even from the construction of the first dam and lock at that point, it being a common occurrence for steamers to ground, and there being also danger in approaching the lock from above. It is believed that all these difficulties will be overcome, and that this portion of the improvement will be quite as complete and efficient for safe and easy navigation as any other part of the entire river and the canals.

Monday, Oct. 11, 1948.

Kenneth Sager, Jack Burroughs and Miss Marian Gerlach were judges for the homecoming parade floats for Appleton High School. Venus Tri-Y took the prize for the most original float, "We'll Conquer the West," with student Joan Bauerfeind chairman. Most colorful was the "We'll Trim the West," Spanish Club entry under chairman Valeria Schoofs. The Commercial Club, Doris Heimmerman and Lorna Ramsay co-chairmen, won the prize for the most humorous. The Orchesis Club had the best all-around float.

Mrs. Donald Gillespie was elected president of a new homemakers' club in Outagamie County. Mrs. Arnold Lecker was named vice president and Mrs. Harold Schmeichel secretary-treasurer.

10 YEARS AGO
Monday, Oct. 14, 1963.

Secretary of Navy Fred Korth resigned his post and was to be succeeded by Paul Nitzke, assistant secretary of defense. Korth resigned in protest of the tentative Pentagon decision to deny the Navy more nuclear powered aircraft carriers.

New officers of the Appleton Toastmasters Club were Harry Hall, president; Edward Kline and Stephen Heegeman, vice presidents; Glenn Rasmussen, secretary, and Darwin Kobs, treasurer.

Censorship isn't right answer

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

In regard to two letters which recently appeared in the People's Forum —one suggesting the censorship of television programs and the other the censorship of the Bible —I would like to say this:

I will agree that the Bible is the best book on the market depicting the nature of sin in the world with all of its ramifications and consequences. To my knowledge, there is no sin common to man which is not revealed most graphically in this book. The Bible tells us how the world was, is, and always shall be. Thankfully, it also shows us the way to redemption from sin through the understanding of, faith in, and dedication to God's pure, sinless, crucified son, Jesus Christ.

I also am thoroughly disgusted with the use of profanity and lewd themes on some current television programs and the movies shown on television. To me, if a writer must resort to profanity and nudity to make his point, he is in the wrong profession. The tendency to pass off evil for good and the implication that a little sin is alright as long as you don't go too far or get caught is wearing thin. Current themes seem to play up the worst in human character and a perverted way of living. It makes one wonder if we aren't on the brink of a movement where sensuality is becoming chic and fashionable. Sensuality is neither new nor modern. Satan has been advocating it for centuries. There are millions of honest, hard working, upright, great Americans in this country who are leading decent lives and are loyal to their homes and families. I would like to see movies about them for a change.

Television is relatively new and the problems are tremendous. Keeping a meaningful and worthwhile program before the public for eighteen hours a day is extremely difficult if not actually impossible. Writers are on a production line schedule leaving them little or no time to perfect and develop their work and it's showing. Right now the quality standards are so low that if a writer produces three good scripts out of ten he is making it. In spite of this, however, there is still no excuse for the poor judgment being exercised in much television programming today.

I am opposed to censorship in any form. In my opinion, it is the first step down the road to dictatorship. I think we all have enough power of locomotion to turn off our television sets, close a book and avoid the box office.

There are a few bright spots on the horizon. The return of drama to the radio may help by offering competition to television and the elimination of nudity. I have always liked radio drama. It is vastly more economical than television drama requiring only actors, script, sound effects and a studio. Consequently, more money can be spent for good writing. Writers must keep the dialogue sharp and fresh. Close your eyes and listen to the dialogue on an average run of the mill television drama. It is practically zero.

Another bright spot is that many actors and actresses, both young and old alike, are disappointed in the content of present day scripts and are asking for reform. Critical reviews in local newspapers are also helping.

Lest we forget, television networks are in business to make money and protest letters do count. In the long run, the only ones who can change things are Miss, Mr., and Mrs. John Q. Public. If we don't buy it, they can't sell it. In the meantime, I hope too many young minds aren't warped and permanently jaded by what they see on television.

Nordlander 'promotes' reading of Bible

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I'm afraid the Rev. John P. Brandt really missed the point of my letter on censorship and the Bible. It certainly is evident from his October 7 People's Forum letter. Perhaps he was influenced by the misleading headline which the editor placed over the letter.

Whether or not the Bible is the "Word of God" is not at issue here. In fact the phrase "Word of God" is a very ambiguous phrase which defies definition.

Let us assume that the Rev. Brandt is correct, however, and that the Bible is indeed the "Word of God." Wouldn't it logically follow that anyone who seeks to describe the human condition in the media should be allowed the same freedom as Deity to reveal it? And isn't it a bit presumptious of the Rev. Brandt to automatically assume that anything which he does not like in the mass media is "sinful." And I particularly resent his unwarranted arrogance in accusing me of justifying immorality merely because he thinks what he might read or see somewhere is immoral. (Speaking of immorality, if anyone was immoral or a blackguard, we would have to name Jacob yet he is one of the heroes of the Bible —he had two wives and two concubines at the same time and cheated his brother Esau twice and also cheated Laban). Just as the Bible's "Author" revealed the human condition in freedom, why should not mortals do the same thing in freedom?

Lest anyone think I have a negative "hangup" on the Bible, I'm going to do the readers of this column a favor. I am going to tell them where they can get the Bible on 16 rpm recordings, read by Alexander Scourby, at only $.47 per record. The American Bible Society has the complete King James Version and the complete Revised Standard Version available to anyone who orders directly from them through their catalogue. These records can be purchased either by "book" or in longer segments of the Bible. The New Testament also comes in Today's English Version. A catalogue can be obtained from the American Bible Society, P.O. Box 5656, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017. I happen to believe that if more people knew what was really in the Bible we would be less emotional about it and more rational. Hence my "promotion" of the Bible in this space.

As long as I am in the Bible promotion "business," may I suggest the best Bible, in my opinion, published in the English language today. It happens to be the Jerusalem Bible, a Roman Catholic Bible with many scholarly – not too many to impede the reader – footnotes. Moreover, for anyone who really wants to get a biblical education, I would strongly recommend the 12 volume Interpreter's Bible and the 4 volume Interpreter's Dictionary of the Bible, both available in many public libraries and published by the Abingdon Press of Nashville and New York.

One final recommendation is Thomas Paine's "AGE OF REASON" which views the Bible from a most unique perspective. It should unclog the intellectual arteries and produce a little thinking.

U.N. looks at sea laws

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly's main political committee begins a week of debate today on whether the long-planned conference on the law of the sea should be held this winter and, if held, whether decisions must be unanimous.

Japan and the Soviet bloc want to postpone the parley. Others favor starting it in November as the 1972 General Assembly agreed.

The political committee also is to consider whether to limit the conference to members of the United Nations and related agencies or to invite North Vietnam.

The biggest fight is likely over whether the conference will take decisions by voting or by consensus, which would require unanimity. This would allow the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and other major powers to veto decisions unfavorable to their interests.

The Americans' chief fear is that the Latin Americans, supported by China and last month's nonaligned summit conference in Algiers, will get the sea law parley to draft a treaty giving coastline countries exclusive fishing rights for 200 miles offshore.

The Soviet Union wants to restrict territorial waters to a 12-mile limit. The United States is willing to negotiate for a larger zone, but says 200 miles is too much.

Other issues expected to come up at the conference are the extent of control countries should have over traffic through adjacent waterways and how to manage the development of sea resources beyond territorial waters.

In the assembly, Byelorussia, Costa Rica, Iran, Cameroon and Mauritania were unopposed for election today to two-year terms on the 15-nation Security Council, starting Jan. 1.

High court reshaping by Nixon to be tested

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —Five years ago when Richard M. Nixon was elected President, one of his principal goals was to reshape the Supreme Court to bring it into line with his own interpretations of the Constitution.

For the Supreme Court now represents Nixon's last hope for judicial support for his argument that under the Constitution, only he has the authority to say whether the tapes of his conversations about the Watergate scandal can be turned over to a federal grand jury.

The President's lawyers have failed to convince U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica or the U.S. Court of Appeals that his argument is legally valid.

Ironically, the opposition to the President's position in the tapes case, often has seemed to borrow arguments Nixon used in criticizing Supreme Court decisions during the 15 years Earl Warren was chief justice.

As President, Nixon has had the opportunity to name four men to the Supreme Court. Each time he said he had sought a man he regarded as a "strict constructionist," one who would not read into the Constitution powers beyond those expressly included by the original framers.

But the appeals court said the President's lawyers were trying to "refashion the Constitution" with their claim that he was immune from court orders.

"The Constitution makes no mention of special presidential immunities," the five-judge majority said in its opinion. "Indeed, the executive branch generally is afforded none. This silence cannot be ascribed the oversight."

Both the courts and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox also seem to have stolen another of the President's favorite themes, law and order.

Cox has hit hard in his arguments on the theme that the tapes are evidence in a grand jury investigation of possible criminal activity. Again and again, the special prosecutor has said "the grand jury has a right to every man's evidence," and, "the highest executive officials, like all citizens, are subject to the rule of law."

England, Iceland now have agreed to agree

LONDON (AP) — Premier Olafur Johannesson of Iceland and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain agreed today to work toward an interim agreement in the 14-month-old fishing dispute between their two countries, a British spokesman said.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The four occupants of a single engine plane that made an emergency landing on one of Milwaukee's main thoroughfares Sunday night walked away from the wreckage.

The craft narrowly missed several cars as it crossed Capitol Drive, clipped off a traffic light and smashed the plate glass window of a furniture store. Firemen said the plane's fuel tank split open, but there was no blaze.

"I tried to land in the street so as not to hit any people or houses," said pilot Bentley Clark, 38, who reported he made the emergency landing about a mile from Timmerman Field when the engine konked out.

Clark said the plane developed electrical problems near Chicago, and he flew the rest of his way back from Dayton, Ohio, without lights and with only infrequent radio contact.

"It says something for the integrity of the plane that it held together as it did after we crashed," he said.

Clark, Glenn Berns and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tiedemann escaped serious injury in the mishap.

Startling changes urged by crime commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — In sharp contrast to the President's view, a federal crime commission says most criminals should be treated as leniently as possible, because the tough approach has failed.

Penitentiaries should be reserved for only hard-core criminals and many offenders should go free with no more punishment than arrest and trial, the commission said.

While shifting toward a broad range of rehabilitative programs, the nation's prisons should guarantee inmates virtually all of the civil rights of other citizens, including conjugal visits, it continued.

The startlingly liberal report was issued today by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals as part of a two-year study financed with a $1.75 million federal grant.

The commission said, "These changes must not be made out of sympathy for the criminal or disregard of the threat of crime to soniety. They must be made precisely because that threat is too serious to be countered by ineffective methods."

—Outright release of persons convicted of minor crimes, first offenses and white-collar crime should be considered.

—No prison sentence should exceed five years except for murderers, professional criminals, and persistent dangerous offenders. Regardless of long sentences, few serve beyond five years, the report said.

—Maximum 25-year sentences should be allowed for hard-core violent offenders. The report omitted any mention of life terms and the death penalty.

—Thousands of offenders should be diverted from the process of arrest, trial, conviction and punishment and channeled through such social services as job counseling or treatment for alcoholism.

The commission endorsed the premise of liberal reformers that "crime and delinquency are symptoms of failure and disorganization in the community as well as in the offender himself."

—There should be no new construction of large prisons except in rare circumstances and none for juveniles in any case.

Flower memento to put on your desk

BY CAPPY DICK

A pressed flower saved from some special occasion, such as a birthday party, can become an outstanding novelty when it is mounted on an easel as shown in the adjoining illustration.

Press with weight

The flower will look its best if, when placed under a weight for pressing, it was carefully arranged in the most natural position possible. It is a good idea to place the fresh flower between a couple of pieces of waxed paper before putting a weight upon it. It should be left undisturbed for several weeks to allow the moisture to evaporate.

When it has been properly pressed, use small daubs of glue to attach it to a neatly trimmed piece of colored poster board. If the flower is quite flat, as a violet would be, it can be completely covered with carefully overlapped strips of transparent tape, creating a shiny effect.

If the flower has special significance, such as having been part of a party bouquet, print this fact on the front of the display card. Finally, glue a cardboard easel to the back so the flower can be displayed upright on your desk. A border around the card can be made by applying strips of wide mending tape, overlapping them to the back and fitting the pieces snugly together at the corners.

American Can Co. reports sales an all-time record

American Can Co., Greenwich, Conn.-based firm with operations in the Fox Cities and Green Bay, has reported higher earnings and record sales for both the third quarter and nine months of 1973.

Net income for the quarter ended Sept. 30 was $23,468,000, or $1.28 per common share, an increase of 8.8 per cent over the $21,578,000, or $1.17, a year earlier before extraordinary loss.

Net sales were $590,222,000, up 7.3 per cent over the $549,992,000 for the third quarter, 1972.

Nine-month income was $54,374,000, or $2.94, up 19 per cent over the $45,686,000, or $2.45, for the same period a year ago, before extraordinary loss. Sales were $1,619,135,000, up 5.6 per cent over the $1,533,822,000 for a year earlier.

The investment tax credit accounted for 4 cents per share of third quarter earnings and 15 cents for the nine months compared with 6 cents and 17 cents, respectively, a year ago.

American Can took an extraordinary loss of $106 million, or $5.67 per common share, in last year's third quarter to cover charges associated with a can plant consolidation and closing program to eliminate excess capacity and obsolete plant locations, and the planned sale of certain pulp and paper facilities.

The result was a net loss of $84,422,000, or $4.80 a share, for the quarter and $60,314,000, or $3.52, for the nine months. Plant consolidations and closings are in process and two pulp and paper facilities have been sold.

William F. May, chairman of the board, and Harry S. Howard Jr., president, reported that during the 1973 third quarter, the consumer products and chemicals businesses posted increases in sales and earnings. Packaging group sales were up moderately, but earnings dipped slightly, and the printing division continued to improve but still wasn't profitable.

May and Howard said that while the company achieved earnings improvements in each of the three 1973 quarters, overall performance continued to be impacted by competitive market conditions and higher raw materials, labor and energy costs, without fully offsetting price recoveries.

"We anticipate these adverse economic factors will be with us for the remainder of the year, though we expect they will be partially offset by our higher volume, continuing internal efficiencies and cost controls," they said.

Bike-a-rama set for Saturday

"Bike-a-rama," a bike competence and safety event sponsored by the Downtown Appleton Kiwanis club with the cooperation of the Appleton police department and schools, will be held from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturday. It is slated for the Aid Association for Lutherans parking lot, corner of N. Superior and W. Washington streets.

A civic committee comprising law enforcement, judicial, school, PTA and business representatives and headed by Anthony Cusatis is completing plans for Appleton youngsters from elementary through high school ages to compete in demonstrating bicycling skills, coordination and knowledge of traffic rules.

Prizes will be awarded in each category with the top point winner taking home a $50 savings bond. All participants will be awarded a safe-biking certificate. Safety inspections will be offered and bike safety information distributed.

Cusatis, Sgt. Elmer Marx of the Appleton police and Judge Nick Schaefer have issued a joint statement citing steadily increasing numbers of bicyclists on streets and pointing out the necessity of strict adherence to safety procedures to minimize accidents.

The "bike-a-rama" committees include contest rules, Chairman Frank Manders, Mrs. Kenneth Fisher, Harry Kositzke and Sgt. Marx; prizes, Cusatis and George Miotke; promotion, Chairman W. B. Nicholas, James Bethke, Rick Abel and Mary Ellen Ducklow.

Nov. 3 has been set as the rain date.
